MICHIGAN CIVIL SERVICE ACT ENACTED

RUMORS LINK MURPHY WITH JUSTICE SEAT

MICHIGAN GOVERNOR IS INVITED TO WHITE HOUSE

Washington, July 30. (AP)—Two high administration officials predicted tonight that a lower court judge will be appointed to fill the existing vacancy in the supreme court.

Refusing to be quoted by name, they hinted that the new justice will be selected from one of the circuits not now represented in the high tribunal.

The officials said four or five circuits have no such representation. Judges in two of these, the tenth and fifth, already have been mentioned as possible appointees. They are Judge Sam G. Bratton of New Mexico, former United States senator, and Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr., of Texas, former mayor of Houston.

In effect, the administration executives threw cold water on current speculation that Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, exponent of Roosevelt labor policies, might receive the appointment.

May Delay Choice

Word spread in the capital tonight that Attorney General Cummings has advised the president he may delay the appointment until after congress adjourns. The attorney general presented an informal opinion on the question to the president, but it was not made public.

Governor Murphy, lawyer and former Detroit judge is scheduled to be a week-end guest aboard the presidential yacht.

Mr. Roosevelt arranged to embark at the local navy yard after dinner tonight.

Murphy telegraphed he would be unable to join him until tomorrow because he had been delayed by a special session of the Michigan legislature. He will fly to the yacht in a navy plane.

The president's guests also will include Secretary Ickes, Senator Green (D-R.I.), Josephine Roche, assistant secretary of the treasury; Captain Paul Bastedo, naval aide, and Miss Marguerite Lehand, a secretary.

President Roosevelt said at a press conference that Murphy's visit would be social. But Senator Brown (D-Mich.), who was elected on the Michigan state ticket with Murphy, asserted it is "entirely possible" the existing vacancy in the high tribunal will be talked over when the president and governor meet.

The vacancy arose out of the retirement early this summer of Justice Van Devanter.

Appointed In 1933

The president has requested the justice department to advise him whether he must fill the vacancy before the senate (which confirms presidential appointments) adjourns. Mr. Roosevelt told reporters today he believed the department ruling had been delivered at the White House, but he had not had opportunity to read it.

The 44-year-old exponent of Roosevelt labor policies entered federal service when he was appointed by Mr. Roosevelt to be governor general of the Philippines in 1933.

He has long contended, among other views on labor matters, that labor disputes "affect the public interest and call for some meas-

Southerners Band Together To Bury Wage-Hour Fixing

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Southern oratory of the old-fashioned full-voiced type reinvigorated today a movement to bury the administration wage and hour bill in a senate committee.

Led by Senator Harrison of Mississippi, a candidate only last week for the post of majority leader, and Senator Smith (D-SC), the southerners almost to a man banded together in an outright revolt against the measure.

Harrison shouted that the bill would set up a labor standards board which could destroy "business, large and small, by its administrative fiats."

Smith declared the measure is intended to "check the inevitable rise of the south from the lowly condition in which the war between the states left it."

"If South Carolina living conditions are so kindly," he said, "that ti takes only fifty cents a day to live reasonably and comfortably, and in New England it takes a dollar and a half, then must we raise the wages in the south to a dollar and a half?

"Why don't we call in God and tell him to stop this business of giving one section more natural advantages than another?"

Administration leaders, who earlier had counted the battle won when William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, urged the bill's passage, hurriedly checked the senate roll-call. They reported that there were still enough votes to pass the bill, though they were obviously worried.

The senate agreed at the conclusion of the day's session to end debate on the bill at 3 p. m. EST, tomorrow. Majority Leader Barkley proposed the agreement.

Husband, 42, Held For Murder After Death of Wife, 14

Ayers was quoted by Lee Fleenor and Henry Metcalfe, special sheriff's officers, as saying his wife was killed when a pistol over which they were scuffling, discharged accidentally.

FUGITIVES HELD ON 4 WARRANTS

Men Caught in Cleveland Charged With Three Bank Robberies

Cleveland, July 30 (AP)—Four federal warrants charging bank robbery were issued today against two men captured in an attempted hold-up of a Cleveland Heights branch of the Central National Bank.

Frank Bird, brother of Charles, was detained by police today as he called at an apartment formerly occupied by his brother. another couple with them were also held.

Charles Bird is charged in another warrant with the $13,000 robbery of the Buckeye Street branch of the same bank June 29, and Widmar, in a fourth warrant, is accused of the $14,000 robbery at the Lorain Avenue branch of the Central National Bank on July 23.

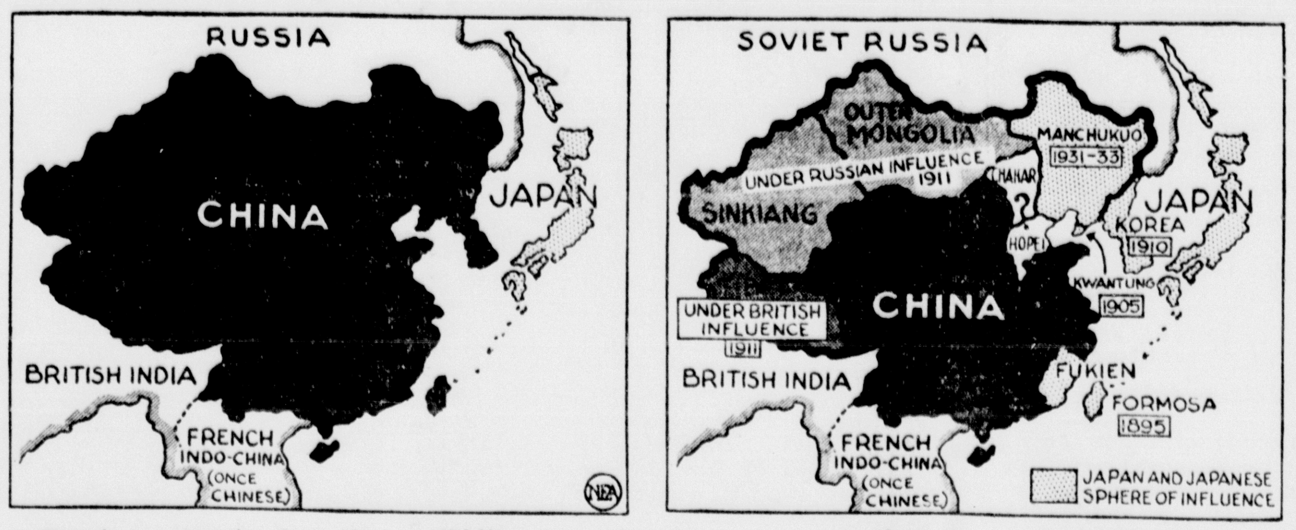
How China's Borders Have Been Pressed Back



Foreign countries have been nibbling away for many years at what was once a tremendous Chinese Empire. Even in modern times, during the last 200 years, continuous inroads have been made, and not even since the turn of the 20th century has vast, sprawling, loosely-knit China been able to halt the centrifugal forces tending to break her up. The contrasting maps above, showing China as she was when dad studied his geography before the turn of the century, and as she is today, tell the story. The table of events below shows some of the principal events in the partition of the once-mighty territories of China.

1516—Portuguese seize Macao (permanent leashold.)
1842—In the Opium War, Hong Kong was ceded to the British.
1858—In a second war with the British the Kowloon peninsula, opposite Hong Kong, was also ceded to the British.
1885—War with the French, resulting in the ceding of Annam to the French (French Indo-China).
1886—British claims to Upper Burma recognized by China—Siam divided British and French.
1895—Kroean War. Independence of Korea recognized. Formosa ceded to Japan.
1897—Germans seize Tsingtao and Kiauchow; Russians seize Port Arthur, Talienwan and Kwantung, tip of the Liaotung peninsula.
1900—Boxer rising—Russia emerges with firm grip on Manchuria.
1904—Russo-Japanese war. Japan takes Korea and the Liaotung peninsula.
1910—Korea formally annexed to Japan.
1911—Tibet and Outer Mongolia declare their independence, the former under pronounced British, the latter under pronounced Russian influence, amounting almost to annexation.
1914—Japan ousts Germany from Tsingtao and Shantung.
1915—Germany presents China with the famous 21 demands.
1917—Japan makes secret agreement with the Allies (not the U. S.) to get Shantung when peace is made.

FORD PROPERTY LINES DISPUTED

Labor Board Contends Scene of Riot Was Public Overpass

Detroit, July 30 (AP)—A legal brief filed by the Ford Motor company in 1931 was used today to assail the company's contention that union organizers beaten near the Ford plant May 26 were trespassing.

The testimony marked the final day of a hearing on the national labor relations board's complaint charging the Ford company with unfair labor practices and with instigating assaults on members of the United Automobile Workers trying to distribute handbills near the plant.

Maurice Sugar, U.A.W. attorney, read the Ford brief which was filed with the Michigan supreme court six years ago. It contended the Eagle avenue underpass approaching the Ford River Rouge plant was "inherently public" property.

Some of the fighting between unionists and Ford employes occurred at this underpass; other disorders centered at a highway overpass on Miller road near gate 4 of the plant. Sugar also produced testimony that the department of street railways paid the Ford company an annual rental for use of this overpass.

When the hearing finally ended at 5:10 p. m., Ford attorneys were granted permission to present additional rebuttal testimony within ten days. Briefs also may be filed in that period, to accompany the hearing record sent to the NLRB at Washington.

Ann Arbor, (AP)—Herbert Hudson, 60, of near Gregory, was killed Friday in an automobile collision near here.

Rescuers Save 89 From Burning Ship

Baltimore, July 30 (AP)—Quick action by a flotilla of rescue craft held the death list in the City of Baltimore steamship fire to not more than four, a check of survivors and passengers and crew lists established today.

Of the 93 persons aboard the Baltimore-Norfolk boat when the fire broke out in the hold an hour after she sailed, 89 were rescued alive. Two are dead and two are missing. Six survivors were injured, none seriously.

Shipping officials, the rescue work completed, centered their attention on the causes of the blaze which flared through the wooden superstructure of the over-night liner.

Almost at once, Capt. Charles O. Brooks, a veteran of 35 years in the Norfolk-Baltimore service and commander of the City of Baltimore, said that the "amazing" spread of the fire suggested sabotage to him. He said he had no reason for the suspicion except the speed of the fire in its spread.

One part of a two-phase inquiry began during the day, when officials of the Chesapeake Bay Line called the ship's officers to submit reports on the fire which broke out Thursday night. The federal government will open its inquiry tomorrow morning, when a special investigating board, appointed in Washington, begins a series of hearings in Baltimore.

Federal steamboat inspectors visited the wreck today with company officials. The federal agency ordered more than 50 of the officers and crew to appear at the hearing tomorrow.

Both men known dead as a result of the fire were identified. They were J. R. Polikoff, a passenger, and a retired merchant of Aiken, S. C.; and Charles Whealton, of Crisfield, Md., a member of the crew. Doctors here said they drowned when they leaped from the burning boat.

Still missing are H. Paige, a passenger whose address is not known; and Cy Haynie, an oiler.

Of the 40 passengers aboard, 38 were saved, and 51 of the crew of 53. Four members of the crew and two passengers were burned or injured, however.

Fireboats which had poured water into the blistered steel hull all night turned to pumping it out again. With the hull, now beached in 13 feet of water, empty, a search will be made for clews to the start and spread of the fire.

REPUBLICANS FOR LA GUARDIA

Mayor Will Run Against Senator Copeland in Primaries

New York, July 30 (AP)—The New York county Republican executive committee tonight endorsed the candidacy of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia in the Republican primaries for mayor, a nomination the Fusion incumbent said he would accept if tendered.

The mayor thus would be pitted in the Republican primaries against Senator Royal S. Copeland (D-NY), designated by Tammany Hall as the Democratic candidate for mayor in the New York county primaries. Senator Copeland also will run in the Republican primaries.

The New York county Republican committee, in its party, corresponds to Tammany Hall in the Democratic party.

The mayor garnered 2,012 out of a total of 2,689 votes in the committee.

Circus Aerialist Shoots Divorced Wife, Kills Self

Long Beach, Calif., July 30 (AP)—Alfredo Codona's tragic downward trail from premier international aerialist ended today in what his mother-in-law told police was suicide after, she said, he shot the woman who divorced him only 30 days ago.

Mrs. Annie Bruce reported Codona, 43, met her daughter, Mrs. Vera Codona, 32, by appointment at a lawyer's office to discuss a property settlement. He asked for privacy. The attorney left the room but Mrs. Bruce did not.

Codona lighted a cigaret for his one-time trapeze performer-wife: said, "This is the last thing I'll be able to do for you," and fired one shot into her head and three into her body, Mrs. Bruce told police.

The circus aerialist then ended his own life with one bullet in the head, Mrs. Bruce related. She told police she was the only witness.

Seaside hospital attendants reported Mrs. Codona in a critical condition.

Codona's tragedies began in 1931 in Copenhagen when a broken ring plunged his second wife, the equally famed Lillian Lietzel, to death.

In 1933, Codona injured a shoulder doing a triple somersault in New York's Madison Square Garden. He since had trained hard for a comeback, but his shoulder bothered him and he never again had reached the heights he knew as the leader of the famous "Flying Codonas," who starred with circuses on three continents

Former Queen Pays Former Kaiser Visit

Doorn, Netherlands, July 30 (AP) Former Queen Victoria Eugenia of Spain, heavily veiled, motored alone from Germany today to pay a visit to former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany.

She remained indoors with the former kaiser and was not seen walking the grounds.

It was known Wilhelm told former King Alfonso two years ago that "I hope I can see Queen 'Ena' before I die."

Household officials denied, however, that the visit concerned reconciliation between the queen and Alfonso, from whom she has been separated since soon after they fled from Spain in 1931.

Japanese Bombings Devastate Tientsin

Tientsin, July 30 (AP)—The Japanese army today subjected Tientsin to a second day of heavy shelling and air bombardment as it clamped its domination more grimly on the whole region between the sea and the Youngting river west of Peiping.

Thousands of homeless Chinese streamed out of the native sections of Tientsin tonight, seeking escape from the terror of the past two days.

Again Japanese shells and air bombs fired buildings in the Chinese sections of the city. Chinese said corpses still lay in the streets, but there was no estimate of casualties. Yesterday, in the first day of bombardment, Chinese officers said thousands of non-combatant Chinese were killed or wounded.

From many points along the twisting 100-mile front between the coast and Peiping's western environs came Japanese claims of success for their arms. Other accounts tended to show that Chinese resistance had been smashed over a wide area.

The Japanese declared today's Tientsin bombardment was necessary to wipe out centers of Chinese military preparation and to turn back a Chinese counter-attack. There had been rifle firing along the fringes of the Japanese concession, when suddenly Japanese air bombers and heavy artillery swung into action.

Among the targets was the Science Library of Mankai university, gift of the Rockefeller foundation to that institution, most important center of learning in the north. At the same time the preparatory schools of Nankai in the native city were bombed.

Nankai university has been a center of patriotic student agitation against Japan's attempts to dominate North China.

Domei, the Japanese news agency, reported a Japanese column under Major General M. Kawabe captured Changsintien, important station on the Peiping-Hankow railway, 15 miles southwest of Peiping and on the west bank of the Yungting river.

BRITAIN RETAINS SPANISH POLICY

Neutrality Scheme Will Stay Intact Despite Opposition

London, July 30. (AP) — Great Britain will hold out for her scheme for non-intervention in Spain despite the opposition of other powers, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told parliament today just before adjournment of a long historic session.

Attacked in the house of commons by Labor Leader Clement R. Attlee and war-time Prime Minister David Lloyd George, Eden did not waver.

"As far as the present plan is concerned," he said, "we do not propose to agree to any major modification."

Demands for changes came from Germany, Italy and Russia, and German Ambassador Joachim Von Ribbentrop declared the British plan had been wrecked because of the Soviet attitude.

Eden admitted the prospect would be dark if there was no agreement on the British scheme.

Soon afterward parliament adjourned for the summer, ending a session during which King Edward VIII abdicated, George VI succeeded him, a $7,500,000,000 five-year rearmament program was inaugurated, and Britain led the way to keep the Spanish civil war isolated.

Total of 28 Killed In Wreck Near Paris

Villeneuve St. Georges, France, July 30 (AP)—The number killed in the wreck of the Paris-St. Etienne express rose to 28 tonight with the death of another passenger.

Fifty persons were injured when the train, hitting an open switch near here last night, was derailed.

Charges of negligence were brought against two switchmen.

As a result of the accident, the cabinet condemned the use of wooden railway cars, such as those in which many of the victims were killed, and decided to expedite the construction of steel cars.

Cellura was brought here by Walter Lacey and Walter Zabik, Wayne county transfer deputies.

McDonald Sails, Seeking Griffin, La Salle's Ship

Chicago, July 30 (AP)—Commander Eugene F. McDonald sailed today on his diesel yacht "Mizpah" for Manitoulin Island in Lake Ruron to search for the hulk of the "Griffin," Richard Cavelier Sieur de la Salle's ship, reputed to be the first to sail the Great Lakes.

The "Griffin" is believed to have foundered off the western end of Manitoulin Island in 1679 while bound for Europe with a cargo of furs.

TWO SENTENCED FOR GERM PLOT

Spanish Insurgents Bare Plan to Infest Area With Epidemic

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, July 30 (AP)—Two Frenchmen were condemned to death today for what insurgent Spanish officials charged was a macabre plot to infest their territory with typhoid and sleeping sickness epidemics.

They said the whole world would be called to witness the truth of their allegations that Louis Chabrat and Jean Boujennec were tool of an international ring that involved Englishmen, Frenchmen and some Spaniards in high government office.

For that reason the insurgents said they would stay execution of sentence and give information of the supposed plan to the League of Nations and all world capitals.

French officials declared the charges were "ridiculous" propaganda. A member of the French chamber of deputies, whose name was similar to one announced by the insurgents as a conspirator, declared he had never heard of the condemned men and that the insurgents were a "pack of liars."

An insurgent military court declared the scheme was hatched in London and that Chabrat and Boujennec possessed vials of typhoid and sleeping sickness germs when they were arrested in Fuentarabia.

Brazil, Ind., July 30 (AP)—Three men were killed and a fourth injured seriously here today when a bolt of lightning struck a hay wagon under which they were sitting.

The injured man, John Elder, 64, was brought here to the Clay County hospital.

All were members of a threshing crew and had taken refuge under the wagon when a mild storm started. The wagon was ripped apart by the bolt.

MODEL LABOR MEASURE PUT ON THE SHELF

REVIVAL OF SNOW REMOVAL FUND PROMISED

BY GILBERT T. SHILSON

Lansing, Mich., July 30. (AP)—The senate adjourned abruptly tonight and left Governor Frank Murphy's labor relations bill and most of the rest of his program stranded.

The two houses were so far apart on the labor measure that there appeared no chance of agreement. The senate passed the bill previously vetoed by Gov. Murphy limiting picketing to employes of strike-bound plants. The house substituting a measure favored by the governor permitting any resident member of the union involved to picket.

The senate refused to have anything to do with the house substitute, buried it in committee and adjourned. The result was the state is left without an industrial relations law.

Ends In Row

The only administration measure which passed was civil service. Adjournment of the senate left rural electrification, a teachers' tenure bill, a measure providing maximum hours and minimum wages, a proposed administration finance department and unemployment compensation unconsidered.

The special session ended in a row. Democratic senators supported Senator George P. McCallum's (Ann Arbor, Rep.) motion to adjourn. They were Sens. William Palmer, Flint, administration floor leader, and J. Neil Lamoreaux, Comstock Park. Sen. James Burns, Dem., Detroit, who opposed adjournment and insisted a labor relations act must be adopted, walked over to Palmer's desk and struck him sharply in the face. Burns then turned and left the chamber without comment.

BY GILBERT T. SHILSON

Lansing, July 30 (AP)—A civil service law was enacted by the legislature today after hours of furious maneuvering.

The balance of Governor Murphy's program was in doubtful position. His labor relations bill, which he hopes to make a model for the nation, encountered difficulty almost as soon as it was introduced. Murphy vetoed a measure passed during the business session because he objected to its picketing provisions. He submitted a new bill to the special session containing the amendments he desired. The senate promptly slapped back by reviving the vetoed bill and passing it again, with changing a word or a section.

Has Bare Majority

The vote was 23 to 5, with Democrats joining Republicans to put the bill across. It was sent to the house, where it was expected it would be rejected and be sent to a conference committee.

Civil service—given up as lost by administration leaders—was brought sharply to life when a Republican senator joined Democratic members to give it a bare majority. Senator Myles M. Callaghan, Republican, Reed City, provided the required ballot. The

Republican minority had the measure effectively bottled up had it been able to command its full strength. Its leaders protested it was a "political" civil service bill, because it requires that department heads must be consulted relative to the qualifying examinations to be given present state employes and because it provided for a three, instead of a four member, bi-partisan civil service commission.

Appropriation Assured

The vote was 17 to 13, with all Democrats voting for the bill and all Republicans, except Callaghan, voting against. Prior to the vote state highway department officials worked diligently with the members. Callaghan denied that they had converted him to civil service.

"I was a member of the conference committee that drafted the measure, and when I sign a conference report I stand by it," he said.

Shortly after passage of civil service by the senate was assured Governor Murphy announced he would resubmit a bill appropriating money from the general fund for snow removal in northern counties. Callaghan had been a staunch champion of the measure. It passed during the business session, carrying $300,000 a year for the purpose, but was vetoed by the governor. The once vetoed appropriation was revived by executive message and the legislature swiftly passed it with an appropriation of $200,000 a year.

Governor Pleased

The civil service bill encountered little opposition in the house. It swept through by a vote of 68 to 20, with party lines ignored.

Murphy, gloomy over the prospects of the measure, glowed with satisfaction at its passage. He declared it will "change the character of the state government and afford escape from the spoils system."

It was the thing the legislature was recalled for," he said. "I would have preferred a four member, bi-partisan commission, but the people may be confident I will set it up in as ideal a way as possible. I pledge myself to give the state true civil service."

Although the law does not become effective until next January the governor said he will begin selecting personnel immediately and will set up preliminary machinery.

Aimed At Haber

The legislature trampled on the governor when it passed amendments to the unemployment compensation law almost diametrically contrary to his wishes. He had recommended that a section exempting employers having an annual payroll of less than $6,000. Instead the legislature exempted a greater number by relieving from the tax all those having less than eight employes. Members of the unemployment compensation commission estimated it might add 100,000 or more employes to the number not eligible for benefits. The legislature also retained in the act a provision aimed at Dr. William Haber, a member of the commission. It prohibits any person holding another state position from holding membership. Haber is on the University of Michigan faculty.

The governor described the enactment as "unfortunate." He indicated he will veto the measure and leave the law as it now stands.

Program Enlarged

As the legislature, impatient to complete its special session duties, turned into the night hours, Murphy kept enlarging his program. He supplemented an original special message asking for the adoption of labor relations, rural electrification, minimum wage and maximum hours for women and minors and snow removal legislation with additional notices requesting the establishment of a whole new budgetary and finance system, and a number of other measures.

The administration finance proposal would set up a finance and budget department directly under the control of the executive and would give him greater power to disburse appropriations where he believed they were most needed. He contended it is necessary to insure completion of the hospital building program.

"Financial and budgetary reorganization is the next need of the state," he declared. "If I don't get it now I will submit it again. There may be two or three special sessions of the legislature during my administration."

Other measures laid before the legislature were technical amendments to the occupational disease law, the banking code and the act creating the public debt commission, which were approved without debate, a teachers' tenure law, still to be considered and an amendment to fix a salary for the secretary of the state board of cosmetology.

"POLITICAL SETUP"

Lansing, July 30 (AP)—Republican members of the senate who voted against civil service issued a joint statement Friday night branding the measure which passed a "complete political setup."

"Republicans of the senate are in favor of civil service for state employes," the statement said. "The bill passed, however, provides for civil service in name only. In practice it will continue the spoils system, using the name civil service as a cloak of respectability."

"For practical purposes it provides for blanketing in all state employes as of January 1, 1938, thus giving administration every opportunity to replace all Republican employes. Not only that, it permits the Democratic administration to 'freeze' such employes into anchored positions.

"It was not because they were opposed to civil service but becaue this bill was unfair and a mere hoax that Republican senators, except Senator Miles M. Callaghan, voted against the bill."

The statement, signed by all the Republicans except Callaghan, pointed out that the measure adopted provides for a three member rather than a four member, bi-partisan commission. It described the qualifying examinations required for present state employes as subterfuge because department heads would be consulted to the questions to be asked.

Saved By Belt

Her night of terror in a life belt on stormy Lake Michigan ended, Helen Thompson, pretty 19-year-old Muskegon, Mich., co-ed, is pictured after she had struggled ashore near Stevensville, Mich., to be reunited with her father. When a squall overturned their 18-foot sailboat, the father managed to cling to the craft until rescued, but the girl was swept away and forced to float and swim by turns until she reached shore.

RUMORS LINK MURPHY WITH JUSTICE SEAT

ure of governmental intervention and control." Murphy served as a volunteer mediator early this winter when automobile strikes paralyzed large segments of industry in his state.

Presidential Possibility?

The shaggy-browed, red-haired Murphy stepped into national politics when he campaigned for Woodrow Wilson. He has supported every Democratic candidate since then, including the Cox-Roosevelt national ticket of 1920 and the "new deal" campaigns of 1932 and 1936.

His activity in behalf of the present administration has produced frequent rumors of appointment to high posts—the postmaster generalship, head of the social security board and labor secretary.

Within the last few months, he has been mentioned as a possible Democratic presidential nominee in 1940.

Murphy was admitted to the Michigan bar in 1915, a year after his graduation from the University of Michigan law school. He has since served on the faculties of the Detroit College of Law and the University of Detroit.

Interested In Reform

He rose to prominence in 1919, as the only federal attorney to obtain convictions in war profiteering cases. He sent four men to the penitentiary.

He continued as special U. S. district attorney for eastern Michigan, a post to which he had been recalled from his captaincy of the American expeditionary force, until 1922. The following year he was elected judge of recorder's court in Detroit.

Murphy, on the bench, became interested in judicial reforms. He was the first judge in the United States to set up a composite sentencing board consisting of judge, a probation officer and a psychiatrist.

He conducted a one-man grand jury investigation of graft in the city government and was credited with the breaking up of the "paving trust."

In 1930, he entered upon a turbulent tenure as mayor of Detroit, leaving for the Philippines in 1933.

WAITS FOR LEGISLATURE

Lansing, Mich., July 30. (AP)—Governor Murphy announced today that he had changed his plans for a week-end visit with President Roosevelt and would remain in Lansing until a special legislative session finishes its work.

Murphy had expected to join the president for a cruise tonight. Instead he may fly to Washington Saturday morning.

In connection with rumors that a possible cabinet appointment or other federal post might be discussed, Murphy said:

"The president asked me to spend the week-end with him. The invitation was purely to afford a personal visit. I am devoted to the president and his leadership, and am privileged to enjoy a close personal friendship with him. No other significance at all was attached to the invitation.

"He gave me the greatest honor that could come to me in public life, working in the Far East. The legislature is in session and it is imperative that I see this program through. I called the White House and explained that my presence here tonight is necessary."

Firemen Injured In Tar Tank Fire

Detroit, July 30 (AP)—Several firemen and three employes of the Barrett Roofing Co. were injured today in fighting flames when three of the company's tar storage tanks caught fire today.

Two employes were blown off their feet by the force of the blasts. None was seriously injured. Company officials could give no loss estimate. The plant is located on the Zug Island road near the Detroit river.

Blight Threatens Peninsula Potatoes

Marquette, Mich., July 30 (AP)—The upper peninsula's $2,500,000 potato crop stands in peril of the dreaded late blight that may reduce the best prospective output in years to rotting vines and decaying tubers, Michigan State college agriculture authorities here believe.

The blight, caused by the mildew fungus phytophathora infestans, may be expected in the state when July is a wet month with cool nights, followed by moderate or heavy rainfall in August. Rain fall is far above normal for July in the upper peninsula.

The last serious blight was in 1932 when crops in Chippewa county, particularly around Sault Ste. Marie, were seriously affected.

(AP)—Irving Kuhn, arrested after seven manhole covers were found in his car, told the judge that he was not going to play tiddle-winks with them nor use them for poker chips, as "every humorist in Detroit" had suggested, but planned to sell them for junk. Starr In Accord With Resolution Of House

Advised that the house of representatives had adopted a resolution regarding slot machines and gambling in Michigan and providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate all law enforcement agencies in the state and counties, Attorney General Raymond W. Starr made the following statement here yesterday afternoon:

"I am heartily in accord with such resolution and will be glad to have such committee investigate my department and I assure the committee that I will cooperate and assist in every way in making such investigation of the law enforcement agencies in the state and counties. I addressed the convention of prosecuting attorneys here in Escanaba yesterday and advised them to clean up the gambling situation in their counties.

"I further advised the prosecutors that it was up to the sheriff and police departments and prosecutor in each county in cooperation with the state police, to handle the gambling situation in their counties and that I expected them to do it."

The attorney general placed the burden of gambling law enforcement upon the shoulders of county officials in his banquet speech Thursday night. "The burden only shifts to the state when you gentlemen and other county and city officials fail in your office and disregard your oaths of office," he declared.

PASSED 74 TO 10

Lansing, July 30 (AP)—The house of representatives passed a resolution today calling for a statewide investigation of gambling. The resolution, which was introduced by Rep. Elton R. Eaton, Republican, Plymouth, passed by a vote of 74 to 10.

The resolution inferred that state department heads would be questioned about the alleged gambling.

"The state liquor control commission has been forced through the activity of slot machine operators in Michigan to issue a ruling to the effect that liquor license of any licensee will be revoked if a slot machine or any game of chance is found in the establishment," the resolution read.

"It is open knowledge that gambling exists in numerous counties of the state and beyond any doubt the state police, the attorney general and the governor must be just as familiar with the situation as the liquor control commission.

"In the past week the attorney general in an address before the prosecutors of Michigan made a speech in which he indirectly accused certain prosecutors of being involved in gambling."

The resolution brought quick answers from Attorney General Raymond W. Starr and Oscar G. Olander, state police commissioner.

Olander said: "Our state police force with its limited personnel has done the best it could to check gambling in the state. We have co-operated at all times with local law enforcement agencies but our staff is so small that it is all we can do to cope with the traffic problem."

Contrary to custom, Eaton was not appointed to head the investigating committee asked for in the resolution. Instead, Speaker George A. Schroeder named Reps. John F. Hamilton and Chester B. Fitzgerald, Detroit Democrats, and Representative Carl F. DeLano, Republican, Kalamazoo, to the investigating committee. Hamilton said he did not know when the first meeting of the committee would be called.

License Offices Remain Open Until Five P. M. Today

Earl M. LaFrenniere, Iron Mountain, manager of the Upper Peninsula office of the secretary of state department, telephoned the Press yesterday afternoon that he had received word from Secretary of State Leon D. Case that all branches would remain open until 5 o'clock this afternoon to accommodate motorists who wished to purchase 1937 license plates.

The deadline for the use of half-year stickers expires August 1. Officers have been instructed to arrest all motorists, traveling with half-year licenses after that date.

NO EXTENSION

Lansing, July 30 (AP)—The deadline for half-year automobile license plates, set for midnight Saturday, will not be extended, Secretary of State Leon D. Case said today.

"Motorists who have been operating with half-year stickers and who attempt to use old plates after midnight Saturday will be arrested if caught," Case said.

The state in the past has extended the deadline to accommodate motorists caught in the last-minute rush.

State Police to Have Exhibit at State Fair

The Michigan state police will furnish their animated "crime museum" as one of the new free features of the Upper Peninsula State Fair at Escanaba, August 10 to 15. It will be the first display of the exhibit at a fair in the upper peninsula and the first show of the 1937 fair season in the state.

With more than 4,000 moving parts, propelled by four electric motors and lighted with more than 400 electric light bulbs, the "crime exhibit" is a veritable Swiss village. It combines the features of a museum and the educational featuers of a safety exhibit. While drawing the interest which the public always shows in prison-made weapons, dope kits and tools that have figured in outstanding crimes, the exhibit also affords a comprehensive story of the work of the Michigan state police and graphically presents safety lessons.

SERGT. RAY SULLIVAN

The exhibit will be set up at the Upper Peninsula State Fair following a brief showing of it before the annual convention of the Michigan Police Chiefs association at Marquette. Sergeant Ray Sullivan, world's champion state police pistol shot, who directed the building of the exhibit by prison labor at Jackson, will be in charge of the exhibit when it is opened at the fair. Either Sergeant Sullivan or Trooper John Horvath of the East Lansing post will be at the exhibit constantly during its display.

Many representatives of Michigan schools have viewed the exhibit and have proclaimed it a medium of education. The Michigan crime commission has termed it a valuable crime preventative, and Col. Frank Brook, H. M. inspector of constabulary, Yorkshire, England, who was a guest of the Michigan state police recently, pronounced it the finest police exhibit he had seen in his world tour.

The four huge glass cases containing the exhibit measure 58 feet. These are moved about the country on a specially designed truck.

Laughing Whitefish Falls

ALGER county, far famed for its many scenic waterfalls, is now expressing concern over the fate of Laughing Whitefish Falls, near Sundell.

The falls have been there for years as Nature made them, nestled in a secluded spot within an undespoiled forest. Because it has remained free from the ravages of the lumbermen's axe so long, the people have just naturally assumed that the scenic attraction is located on state-owned land.

The opposite is the fact, however. The timbered-tract on which Laughing Whitefish Falls are located is owned by the East Jordan Land company, which recently has been negotiating with various Upper Peninsula lumbering interests in an effort to sell the property.

It is altogether likely, however, that Mr. Porter of the East Jordan Lumber company is not aware that one of the Upper Peninsula's valuable tourist business assets is a part of his holdings. If he were apprized of the fact, it is quite probable he would gladly make a satisfactory deal, whereby it would become either a county or state park.

Laughing Whitefish Falls should be preserved in its wilderness setting. The people of the Upper Peninsula should not allow its scenic values to suffer the same fate as that which has befallen the once-beautiful Au Train.

The Governor Defied

GOVERNOR MURPHY certainly does not have any rubber-stamp legislature at the current session in Lansing.

His veto of the bill providing $300,000 annually for snow removal aid for counties of the state was overridden by the senate by a 22 to 7 vote but narrowly missed passaged by two votes in the house. There is still some hope for the northern "snow belt" counties, however, for an effort will be made to bring the measure up for another vote in the house. The governor objects to the legislation because he feels it would make the problem of budget balancing for the state more difficult, although the lack of fthis state aid may cause financial difficulties for many of the northern counties.

Civil service appears to be destined for another tussle, with the prospects for the enactment of a decent merit plan quite gloomy. The Democratic attempt to favor present employees by giving them credit for their experience on the job is met by the Republicans with the argument that all former state workers should be given the same opportunity.

Time was when the governor of the state could crack the whip and the legislators would go down the line for him. Governor Murphy, despite the fact that he has been mentioned often as due to get a more important New Deal post and even suggested as a presidential possibility, does not seem to be able to get the lawmakers, to do his bidding. His reputation as a governor depends pretty much on what action they take with regard to his legislative program.

Public Health

FOR a great many generations, people regarded their physical ailments as something set apart for medical men alone to cure. There was no general moral compulsion to take an interest in disease beyond submitting it to a man who knew how to deal with it.

Fortunately, through the efforts of leaders in the medical proffession itself, a new attitude has come into existence; an attitude based on the responsibility of the individual to know exactly what causes disease, what he can do to avoid getting it, or once having it, how best to cooperate with the doctor in getting rid of it.

The question of public health, therefore, is becoming as much a matter of public policy as wages, working hours, or living costs. But it is a misake to think that adopting the attitude settles the matter and that we are thus automatically ushered into an era of freedom from bodily ills.

Just released, the report of fthe Hospital Survey for New York indicates another big step necessary to the final success of the new public health policy.

The public already has an immense investment in hospitals and allied institutions, the report points out. And while this investment has been made with the best of intentions, it has been made haphazardly. The result is that in many cases the benefits are not properly distributed, facilities of many hospitals are never fully used, and new and more efficient methods of fighting disease are not placed universally within reach of the people.

In the light of expanding knowledge in medical science, the hospital is an indispensable public utility because of the wide variety of resources for diagnosis and treatment that it offers.

For that reason, the report emphasizes that the organized care of the sick a generation hence will best be provided for by the orderly growth and co-ordination of present facilities.

Now the great majority of institutions for the care of the sick are provided and maintained by taxes or voluntary contributions of the local population. This, then, places the duty of forwarding a great humanitarian work directly upon those individuals who make up each community.

Unfold sums of money and the genius of qualified experts have been turned to the co-ordination of our endeavors in many other fields, commercial, cultural, and philanthropic.

It seems that it would be good economy, as well as good sense, that the public health, through our facilities for guarding it, should have the same advantages.

"Snow Belt" Forsaken

THE Upper Peninsula is left without its much anticipated appropriation of $300,000 a year for snow removal work as a result of the failure of the Democratic House of Representatives to override the veto of Governor Murphy after a senate victory led by Senator Otto Bishop, Alpena Republican.

At the early afternoon session, on motion of Bishop, the senate voted twenty-two to eight to appropriate the funds in spite of the Governor's objections. Later the effort fell short by two votes. Sixty-seven house members are necessary. Sixty-five voted aye.

Storms of protest were heard about the capitol shortly after members convened at the morning session. Efforts to hold sufficient Democrats in line to sustain the veto failed when Senators Dotsch (Garden) Shea (Calumet) and Wickstrom (Norway) all Democrats supported Bishops move.

Senator Ernest Brooks, Holland Democrat, warned the senate that other appropriation bills already signed by the governor leftf the general fund short of money for any purpose "even one as worthy as snow removal" but the Republicans turned a deaf ear to the appeal aftfer Senator Wiles Callaghan, Reed City Republican, admonished his colleagues against closing the roads of the north country during the winter time thereby losing sales tax revenue, gasoline tax money and crippling commerce.

"Everyone should know by this time that the children of fthe rural northern counties must have the roads kept open if they are to attend school, everyone with any sense knows that the treasuries of these small counties are fast becoming depleted. If there was money for everything else. There should be some for snow removal" Callaghan said.

The first break in Democratic ranks came when Senator Henry Shea, Calumet Democrat said that "even dead people can't be buried if the roads are to be closed after every storm." Senator John Wickstrom, Norway, Democrats, said that passage of the snow removal bill could not be blamed for the state budget being out of balance.

Talks of trading votes came thick and fast as efforts went forth to line up enough house votes to support the senate's action. In a surprise move immediately following the afternoon recess, the house moved to pass the bill over the veto. Several members had absented themselves from the chamber. Even then sixty-five members out of a total of eighty-seven present cast their lots with the wishes of the northern counties. That was two short of passage.

The defeat of the effort to override the Governor will probably find its repercussions later. Outstate members, particularly those from the Upper Peninsula express the feeling that they owe the governor no further support after he "has failed them in their most important winter need."

AND NOW THEY AGREE

(Our Sunday Visitor)

OUR SUNDAY VISITOR was probably the first to criticize the employment of radicals by the C. I. O. for organizing purposes, and it, in turn was criticized by a number of individuals for assuming that an organization which had some Catholics at the top would make any mistakes in that direction. But now our critics have seen the light, and their present attitude is in perfect agreement with what we held to be factual from the beginning.

Surely the laboring man has no greater friend in America than Father Cox, of Pittsburgh, who, in 1932, was commandeered by labor in Pittsburgh and in many other cities to run as its candidate for President of the United States.

Father Coakley, of Pittsburgh, whose judgment is highly respected in his community, is also critical of the methods employed by John Lewis and believes that the Wagner Labor Relations Act will have to be amended if justice is to be accorded to both industry and labor for permanent peaceful relations.

Michael Williams, editor of the Commonweal, who has been a one hundred per cent supporter of the New Deal, and especially of the unionization of all labor, is now saying the things which we said early last April. Editors of other Catholic publications are writing in the same strain.

Father Cox writes as follows:

"Permit me to emphasize the fact that I am, always have been and always will be a union man, one who believes in Unionism. It is right and proper that we have collective bargaining to determine just wages, hours and working conditions. The tactics eing employed today by so-called union racketeers are as unjust and repugnant to me as the injustices of child labor and the sweat shop of other days. The pendulum of injustice has swung from the 5 per cent of the unjust old privileged class who ruled before the depression to the 15 per cent represented in the 1937 mushroom labor ranks of today.

"Between the 5 per cent and the 15 per cent are 80 per cent of the American people who have human rights which are as sacred to them as property rights or collective bargaining rights. The 80 per cent represent the vast majority of right thinking honest living patriotic American descendants of the people who pioneered and made this country and gave us a place in which every man is guaranteed the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

"The so-called 'New Deal' under President Roosevelt has done great things to alleviate old abuses but these must not be superseded by worse evils in the form of labor dictatorship that is bringing us daily closer to civil war and revolution. This labor situation is not Communism or Fascism, it is racketeerism.

"Communism and Fascism are the product and the institution of the people of the nations in which they predominate but labor racketeerism in America today is mobocracy led by fanatics. Great numbers of these organizations are composed of men and women who are not even native born Americans. Many of the leaders and members are aliens. Can you imagine an American going to Russia, Italy, Germany, England, Ireland, France or Poland, and demanding from the citizens of those countries the right to rule and dictate. Such an American would be promptly arrested and shot at sunrise. Premier Hepburn, of Ontario, Canada, wasted no time in dealing with American agitators in his country.

"It seems to me that the middleman of merica has not yet spoken, the millions who did not vote New Deal are a power to be reckoned with. They will speak definitely and soon. It seems to me this so far silent 80 per cent, irrespective of political affiliations, should rally round the flag as in every emergency when it has been threatened and demand that law and order and constitutional guarantees be preserved in the United States of America.

"This 80 per cent who have not yet spoken are the men and women of the Masonic Orders, Shriners, Eastern Stars, Odd Fellows, Knights of Columbus, American Legion and Auxiliaries, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliaries, Disabled American Veterans.

"They ought to be able to deal effectively with the situation. They ought to be able in some way even if the foreign element does not understand or cannot speak English correctly so as to be advised as to proper behavior to get the chaotic situation in the United States of America under control and make America safe for Americans.

"Seven states are affected by this wave of labor racketeering. It semes the present authorities are sitting back smiling, because the industrialists who had little regard for their New Deal policies are suffering. This is not government, my dear friends. This is a laissez faire attitude worse than we have ever known in the United States of merica and may be another Kerensky regime here which will be followed by mobocracy directed and controlled by aliens. Let us rally fellow Americans to save our flag and your flag in my country and your country."

Doorn, Holland (AP) — Twenty-three years ago August 1 Germany declared war on Russia and Wilhelm II signed the general mobilization order.

The next day German troops invaded France.

Today the man who was accused of plunging the world into battle sits on a knoll of his 50-acre estate here, absorbed in roses.

Once attended by generals and ministers, today he is accompanied by a soft-eyed dachshund.

—MUSTACHE BRISTLES NO MORE—

The bristling mustache to which he gave his name is gray. It bristles no more but its tips still point skyward. A gray beard covers his once-arrogant chin. His stern face has softened, grown more angular.

The world was at his throat when the abdicated monarch fled to Holland 19 years ago. He found shelter with friends and Holland protected him. In 1920 he bought his 50-acre domain in Doorn.

Seventeen years have drowned the hatred. Now, at 78, the ex-Kaiser seems a handsome gentleman of the old school. His personal sorrows—the suicide of his youngest son, PrinceJoachim, soon after the war, the death of the former kaiserin in 1921—have been forgotten.

He sits amid his roses courteously acknowledging respectful salutes from promenaders.

—PUBLIC IS ADMITTED—

The ex-Kaiser has been alone part of this summer. His consort, the businesslike Kaiserin Hermine, whom he married in 1922, went to supervise her properties in Germany. None of the children of her former marriage were there when an Associated Press correspondent visited Doorn recently.

At one side of the ex-Kaiser's rosarium is a slight eminence. Although the garden is open to those of the public who get tickets of admission from the stern-visaged Dutch gendarme at the guardhouse, the knoll is chained off and marked "private."

On a white seat at the top of the slope, in front of an evergreen hedge, the ex-monarch sits and admires his roses, dachshund by his side.

—GIFTS FROM OLD FRIENDS—

The gorgeous colors spread before this haven of peace come from flowers that are gifts from persons an dorganizations dear to the old man's heart. Little metal plates at each bush are the reminders.

One reads "The Germans of Cincinnati"; another "The German Nobility League;" many from various parts of Germany are marked "The Kaiser-True Youth."

The Hohenzollern ex-ruler has so completely recovered from his last winter's siege of influenza that he has resumed wood-cutting, long a favorite occupation of his exile.

He rarely is seen afoot in Doorn village. By force of circumstances his needs are covered from Germany where his financial interests lie. The imperial refugee makes no exception to the nazi rule that money raised in Germany must be spent within the reich.

New York Column

BY JACK STINNETT

NEW YORK—Fribbliana: Of titles to new plays that are popping up in the summer theaters, we like best that of Doris Frankel's drama, presented at Brattleboro, Vt., — "Don't Throw Glass Houses." Sounds like something Mrs. Malaprop thought up.

Elisabeth Rethberg, the Metropolitan diva, has a Belgian papillon (it's a dog) that goes so hysterical with joy whenever the diva returns from a long absence that the vet has to be called in to give it shots. (Oh well, hot weather is hard on press agents too.)

Those "vaudeville - revues" which have replaced burlesque on Broadway are getting more squawks than applause frfom the old burleycue patrons. Not only has the name "burlesque" disappeared from the stem, but also the name "Minsky" from all performances controlled by the gentlemen who bear that nomen. (Not that it is any history-making event, but as far as we know, that is the first time any one ever was refused a permit to use his own name.)

Variety reports that even before the search for Amelia Earhart and her navigator had reached its climax, a song-writing team was around offering a song commemorating the death of the great aviatrix.

The fact that James Cagney demanded a fortune (that is what it would seem like to strictly legitimate actors) to play Lennie's pal, George, in the dramatization of John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men," is not worrying Sam H. Harris and George S. Kaufman at all, for there are a dozen actors who could do all right by George, but they really can not find one to walk on in the shoes of big, dumb Lennie.

Apparently the beaneries, with night-club trimmings, have replaced the cigar stores and saloons as the favorite last seats of the ex-mighties of the prize ring. Now, it is Benny Leonard, the Undefeated, who is going into the restaurant business. In doing so, he joins the ranks of Dempsey, Canzoneri and Mickey Walker (Keep your chin in, Benny, you're in a free-for-all now).

Add Cinema-to-footlights: Elissa Landi, who will have the femme lead in a Hungarian comedy, "Jean", this winter on Broadway, playing opposite Vincent Price.

Broadway will remember the late George Gershwin as the shyest, hardest working young composer ever to beat his way out of Tin Pan Alley into the ranks of modern music's immortals.

A Tin Pan Alley friend tells us Gershwin never felt that he had quite accomplished what he had set out to do in a composition . . . not even in his "Rhapsody in Blue" which undoubtedly will outlive nearly all other contemporary efforts in "classical jazz." But he never spared himself in attempting to achieve his goal. He spent two years writing "Porgy and Bess," orchestrating every bar of it himself.

Perhaps it was this desire to give his all to every phrase he wrote that made him chaffe under the demands of Hollywood, where time is such a factor. Not long before his death, he wrote that, as far as movies went, he had definitely decided . . . his score for "The Goldwyn Follies" would be his last.

Acting is acting whether it be on the stage or on the screen. There is no great gulf separating the two mediums.

News Behind The News

BY H. R. BAUKHAGE

Copyright, 1937, by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

Washington, July 30.—Surprising as it may seem, the administration wouldn't be a bit mad if Congress packed up and went home this minute.

It isn't advertised, quite the contrary but the high strategy at the time of this writing is to get them out of town as soon as possible.

The theory of this: If the legislators go home with most of the program uncompleted, the New Deal plan to take the issue to the country in the fall will be that much more effective. Exhibit A would then read, "Congress did nothing for you."

After this plan had been broached to the Democratic leaders (minus Vice President Garner) Senator Barkley's approving silenced resounded.

But House Leader Sam Rayburn didn't like the idea so well.

He wanted to score up a few hits before the game was called on account of rain so his colleagues would have something to tell the folks at home about.

Of course, if Congress suddenly changed its heart and produced a hatful of legislative desiderata, that would be a different matter. But under the present plan half a loaf would be almost worse than no bread at all.

—WOULD SEEK FORGIVENESS—

There are, of course, a certain few in the senate of those who opposed the court bill who would like to stay here long enough to do at least one good deed or two and secure, if they could, presidential forgiveness.

But they would be taking a risk, for Senator Minton's amendment, or another similar measure reviving the court issue, would mean another chance for the administration to separate the sheep from the goats.

—SOME BLACK MARKS—

A shiver would run down the backs of some of the members of congress if they could see a certain list not too prominently displayed on the President's desk.

It shows the senators and representatives whose voices were loudest on economy when certain administration measures were being discussed, but who recently voted to override the presidential veto on the bill extending low-rate interest on farm loans.

Some of these men—especially those who have no farm constituents, and whose votes were interpreted as merely an attempt to embarrass the administration—have black marks after their names. They may hear something from them later.

—NEW MOONEY CHAPTER—

Another chapter in the get-Mooney-out-of-jail serial is about to be written with a new collaborator.

He is none other than William Gibbs McAdoo, United States Senator from California and candidate for the same office in 1938.

Some time ago a bill was introduced in both houses memoralizing the governor of California on the subject of Tom Mooney's release. Usually states memorialize congress. This is one of the few times the process was reversed.

The proposal had the usual Mooney supporters and that was about all.

A few days ago there was a mass meeting in San Francisco which, it is said, numbered 35,000 (a lot of votes), demanding Mooney's freedom.

Now Senator McAdoo privately announces that he will soon come out urging immediate hearings on the bill. About half the California delegation has promised to support the measure.

The court fight, upon whose head most of Washington's evils are laid, has held up the completion of the four million dollar air-conditioning project which will eventually make the capitol, the senate office building and the two house office buildings one-hundred per cent equipped. The work was to have been finished by August 15, but congress being in session has interfered with the plans.

All of the new and most of the comparatively new government buildings are air-cooled (and heated) and gradually the systems are being expanded. The only federal building outside of Washington so blessed is the United States court house in New York. Naturally, federal employes in the South are being heard from.

The White House has individual units in some of the rooms and the executive offices are equipped throughout.

As usual, when we brag about this "modern innovation," we forget one White House bedroom was air-cooled temporarily in Garfield's time. It was when the martyred president lay dying there, too ill to be moved. Machinery used for clearing the air in mines was used.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

FRUITFULNESS

These are the saddest things to see:
A barren field, a fruitless tree,
A Godless man, an idle wife,
A life without a goal in life.
For such a tree and such a field,
With so much need, that nothing yield,
And lives like these without a plan,
Serve neither self nor God nor man.

For I would rather dig a ditch,
Although it made another rich,
Than leave the field a barren moor
And know it kept another poor.
I surely must employ my day
For God and mortal in some way
And with a purpose meet the morn,
Or better I were never born.

These are the saddest things. The glad
Are ample acres verdure-clad,
An honest heart, a busy hand,
Each day some noble purpose planned.
A fruitful life, a fruitful earth,
These are the only things of worth.
Good cannot idle, if it would:
We must be busy to be good.

Dethmers Elected To Succeed W. J. Miller

John R. Dethmers, Ottawa county prosecutor, was elected president of the Michigan Association of Prosecuting Attorneys in convention here at a session held yesterday afternoon at the Sherman hotel. He succeeds William J. Miller, Delta county prosecuting attorney.

Other officers elected are: Leonard Paterson, Sanilac county, first vice-president; Arthur M. Mann, St. Clair county, second vice-president; John H. Brennan, deputy attorney general, Lansing, secretary-treasurer.

Speakers on the afternoon program were V. F. Gormely, liquor control commissioner, who explained recently adopted liquor and slot machine regulations of the commission and Caesar Scavarda, state police captain, who spoke on "Safe Highways."

Choose Directors

Members elected by acclamation to the association's board of directors are Alvin G. Dimma, Albert Dimmers, Morris K. Davis, Vincent Fitzgerald, Thomas J. Bailey, Oswald T. McGinn and Charles W. Austin.

Today's activities of the prosecutors will be mainly recreational, with sight-seeing trips, golf matches and motor boat rides scheduled.

Gambling Discussed

Pin-ball, slot machines and other gambling devices were topics that furnished an interesting discussion at the morning forum held by the members of the Michigan Association of Prosecuting Attorneys yesterday.

The discussion was led by Prosecuting Attorney Duncan McCrea of Wayne county.

John D. Voelker, prosecuting attorney of Marquette county, related his experiences in his campaign to his county of gambling devices, and then told of his difficulties in the drive against bank nights.

Prosecuting Attorney McCrea reported that at intervals attempts are made to drive the slot machines and other gambling out of his county, but that they always return. He said that it was a difficult problem to outlaw lotteries when Detroit's own police and fire departments, the churches and Tiger baseball management and many fraternal organizations are conducting such enterprises. He expressed the opinion that "we would be all better off if these gambling devices were legalized."

Prosecuting Attorney Vincent Fitzgerald of Macomb county reported that the slot machines had been driven out in his area, but that the playing of pinochle, craps and other gambling games is on the increase and it is impossible to stop. There was also some discussion of the licensing of pinball machines by some cities, and it was pointed out that municipalities have no right to license illegal enterprises.

Newspaperman Talks

Wm. J. Duchaine, managing editor of the Escanaba Daily Press, addressed the prosecutors on the topic, "The Newspapers and Law Enforcement." The speaker stated that crime news is not being given the prominent place on the front page of newspapers as is often charged, and pointed out that the big stories of the year have little relation to crime.

He said that the publication of news of robberies and other crimes usually proves an aid to law enforcement, particularly in the quick apprehension of criminals. The speaker also pointed out that newspapers also serve the public interest and prevent crime by the promotion of supervised recreational programs, Boy Scouts and other character building organizations.

In closing, Mr. Duchaine told of some of the tourist attractions in Escanaba and the rest of the Upper Peninsula.

Ranger Not Among Endeavour I Victims

BY TOM HORGAN

Newport, R. I., July 30 (AP)—Endeavour I, T. O. M. Sopwith's unsuccessful challenger for the America's cup in 1934, today scored her second victory in as many days in winning the final race of the Eastern Yacht club's cruise.

Unlike yesterday, however, the British boat did not number among her victims Harold S. Vanderbilt's Ranger, which tomorrow meets Sopwith's new challenger, Endeavour II, in the first of the series of races for the America's cup.

Vanderbilt kept Ranger out of competition to try out new canvass and to permit her final measurement for the international contest.

The old British challenger led Gerard B. Lambert's Yankee and Chandler Hovey's Rainbow home in that order. A boat length separated each after a 30-mile windward-leeward contest.

Endeavour I, now owned by Frederick Siegrist, again was sailed by Sherman Hoyt, a member of Vanderbilt's after guards during his defense of the historic yachting trophy in 1930 and 1934.

Polish Net Champ Loses to Marble In Women's Finals

Sea Bright, N. J., July 30. (AP)—Miss Alice Marble of San Francisco won a second leg on the Sea Bright bowl today by defeating Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Polish champion, in the women's finals of the 50th annual invitation tennis tournament of the Lawn Tennis and Cricket club. The scores were 6-3, 5-7, 8-6.

It was the first triumph for Miss Marble, U. S. national champion, over the stocky Polish star in four meetings.

The blonde Californian, who in 1936 turned back Carolin Babcock of Los Angeles to have her name engraved on the silver trophy for the first time, threw away 10 match points today before she finally achieved victory over Miss Jadrzejowska.

Miss Marble played nearly perfect tennis in the first set and came to the net frequently to put away points with devastating volleys.

In the mixed doubles, Bobby Riggs, of Los Angeles, who is scheduled to meet Wilmer L. Allison of Austin, Texas, in tomorrow's singles final, paired with Sylvia Henrotin of France to defeat Gil Hunt of Washington, D. C., and Hope Knowles of Philadelphia, 6-3, 6-4.

Miss Jedrzejowska and Jiro Yamagishi, the Japanese star, gained the other mixed doubles bracket in the finals by toppling John McDiarmid of Chicago and Gracyn Wheeler of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-4, 6-4.

Gust Peterson Is Honored By CNW Workers

A most pleasant surprise and a tribute of appreciation from his associates was given Gust Peterson, Chicago & North Western veteran, who retired July 1, when he was called to the company offices Thursday and presented with two beautiful gifts.

The gifts, remembrances of his fellow-workers, were presented by Grant Olson, who represented the group.

Mr. Peterson, who plans to enjoy a well-earned rest at his home, 1425 Third avenue north, spent over fifty years in the service of the Chicago & North Western road. He was born in Sweden and came to this country when a young man. He settled in Escanaba, and was in the lumbering industry before entering the service of the railway, and working up to the position of bridge and building supervisor, which he held at his retirement.

MICHIGAN MARCHES ON!
Know Your State
Citizens of Michigan — In order to help you realize the varied nature — the size and scope of Michigan's industries — and what they are contributing to the human and industrial welfare of the state, the Pfeiffer Brewing Company is publishing this series of interesting advertisements.

THE INDUSTRY THAT CHANGED THE WORLD!
—MOTOR CAR BUILDERS
The motor car has changed civilization. No longer are men isolated from men — communities from communities. Where there are roads or trails, families — irrespective of distance — have become neighbors. America is now a whole nation of neighbors. Farm and city have been brought together. Areas formerly inaccessible—deserts, plains and mountain passes—hear day and night the rhythmic purr of running motors. What is true of America is true the whole world over. And behind and furthering this momentous change are the motor car builders of Michigan. For here is the center of the entire automotive industry. Here are the sturdy, skillful craftsmen who make this amazing industry possible. Approximately 240,000 workers in the modern, sanitary plants of Michigan manufacturers earn around $430,000,000.00 a year in making motor cars and motor car parts. And they create a merchandise value at the factories of close to $2,300,000,000.00 a year. Here, as in many other industries, Michigan is the outstanding leader.

Mother at 11, Doubly Happy at 13

Eighteen months ago this proud young mother, Mrs. Daniel Gonzales, of Port Arthur, Tex., was the talk of the country. For, before her 12th birthday, she gave birth to a 7-pound son, Jan. 19, 1936. If the last you heard was: "Mother and baby doing well," just look at this. Not only has Mrs. Gonzales' first born become a husky youngster, but he has acquired a sister, Estella Alice, born July 7 this year, less than a month after the mother celebrated her 13th birthday on June 15. The Mexican father is 22.

CONG. LUECKE IS OPTIMISTIC

Expects Favorable Vote on Fishing Study Resolution

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C.—Representative Luecke announced today that the House will undoubtedly take favorable action on his resolution which authorizes an investigation of fisheries and fishing industries of the great Lakes by the bureau of fisheries.

A hearing has been held on the resolution by the House committee on merchant marine and fisheries, and favorable action is expected within a week, Luecke said.

The investigation would be made with a view to determining the condition and prospects of the fishing industry, their relation and effects on the Nation's food supply, and the most appropriate method of promoting and conserving such fisheries and protecting such industry in the public interest.

At the hearing it was brought out that in 1908 the United States and Canada entered into a treaty for the same purpose of conducting such an investigation, but the treaty was never ratified.

No definite amount of money has been appropriated for the job, but this may be fixed by the committee before it reports the measure out, Luecke said.

Spring's Replica Now Being Built At U. P. State Fair

John I. Bellaire and Virgil Arrowhead, charged with the task of constructing a replica of Kitchi-tiki-pi Spring for exhibition purposes at the Upper Peninsula State Fair, began work on the project at Escanaba Thursday afternoon. The excavation work was completed and as soon as the water lines are laid, the "spring" will be buit at the fairgrounds.

The spring's replica will be 16 feet in length, 7½ feet in width and 3½ feet deep, making a perfect reproduction on a 1-16th scale. Five 'boiling' craters will be installed at the bottom of the spring, and the bottom will be covered with sand taken from Kitchi-tiki-pi. Moss draped logs wil be laid in the spring. A raft with a number of sightseers will be placed on top of the water, with a cable stretching the length of the spring. Even the caretaker's cabin, the path leading to the spring, and the evergreen background will be realistically reproduced.

Small trout will be placed in the water to entertain the fair visitors, much as the large trout now seem daily in the waters of Kitchi-tiki-pi entertain the visitors there.

RESORT AREAS ARE INSPECTED

Sanitary Engineer Now Making Surveys in This Locality

C. E. Niggeman, newly appointed sanitary engineer of the Schoolcraft-Alger health unit, has completed sanitary inspections of all tourist resorts at Indian Lake, Thompson, Gulliver, Cooks, resorts near Munising and in the lake regions between Manistique and Munising, Dr. E. J. Brenner, director of the health unit, announced yesterday.

Resorts at Blaney, Seney and Germfask were inspected yesterday by Mr. Niggeman. The inspections included a sanitary survey of the water supply, sewage disposal, bathing facilities, and milk supply. A complete survey of the sanitary conditions of the Manistique milk plants and of the producers sending milk to the Manistique market also has been completed.

Sanitary inspections will be made periodically to prevent unhealthy conditions.

Dr. Brenner asserted yesterday that although the new health unit has been in operation here for a short period, much progress has already been made toward the improvement of public health conditions. Particularly important is the progress being made against tuberculosis.

"The Schoolcraft-Alger district has the highest tuberculosis death rate in the state," the doctor said yesterday. "Naturally, the lowering of this rate will be one of our main objectives. We feel that considerable progress has already been made toward that end, but, of course, the battle has just been started."

The health director also issued a recommendation to mothers to see that their children receive complete physical examinations before the opening of school.

"It is particularly important for the child entering school in the fall for the first time to be immunized against such communicable diseases as small pox and diphtheria.'

There are about 25,000 miles of navigated rivers on the mainland of the United States.

POST PROJECT BEGINS AUG. 11

Uninterrupted Program for 6 Months Urged by WPA Officials

A definite decision that work will be started on the state police post project at Manistique on August 11, the beginning of the next WPA pay period, was announced here Thursday afternoon by Richard Lawson, Paul Howell, and Con Becker, WPA district authorities, who visited here and inspected WPA projects in this locality.

It is probable that WPA workers now employed on the road grading job east of Manistique who were transferred there a week ago will be sent back to Manistique to work on the construction of the police post.

The WPA oficials reported that one of the purposes of their trip to this region was to urge sponsoring organizations to line up suficient projects to guarantee uninterrupted operation for a six months period.

It was originally planned to start work on the police post July 26 but this plan was revised to hurry the grading project between Whitedale and Blaney. A construction foreman to be in charge of the police post project has not yet been hired and a qualified man is now being sought for this project.

The police post will be constructed at the triangle intersection of Arbutus avenue and US-2, extending back to the intersection of Lake street. The state has already received an outright deed of this property for the purpose of building a state police barracks upon that site.

At present the only WPA projects sponsored by the city of Manistique filed and approved thus far are the water and sewer lowering project on Arbutus avenue, work on which is now in progress, and the construction of new sidewalks on various blocks on the west side of the city. It is expected that these projects will keep WPA men busy for some time. The police post project is state sponsored, with the cost of skilled labor and materials being paid by the state of Michigan, and the cost of relief labor being borne by the federal government.

Domestic Art Will Be Shown at U. P. Fair

One of the centers of interest in the Upper Peninsula State Fair Exhibition building, this year, as in years past, will be the Domestic Economics display, which will be attractively arranged in accordance with varied classifications.

G. R. Mathews of Manistique is director in charge; Mrs. Oscar Kraus is superintendent and Mrs. L. J. Perrin, assistant superintendent of the Baked Goods section; and Mrs. Jacob Ammel, superintendent, and Mrs. L. J. Corcoran, assistant superintendent of the Canned Goods section of the exhibit.

Under the former premiums will be awarded for the finest breads, cakes, small cakes and cookies, pastry and home-made candy, as well as special prizes, offered by industrial concerns. The Canned Goods section will offer awards for the best fruits, vegetables, meats and fish, preserves, conserves, marmalades, jams, jellies, fruit juices, pickles and a miscellaneous group which includes maple sugar, maple syrup, home-made soap and hard soap, home-made vinegar, home-made bees' honey, synthetic honey.

Balanced Meal

Under this last group also is listed the balanced meal, which each year has been drawing more entries, and winning more attention. The meal is contained in at least five jars of canned food, and the exhibits are accompanied by cards giving menus planned from the foods.

Special prizes, industrial concerns' awards, also are listed.

The regulations governing the department remain unchanged. Entries will close at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, August 10. All articles shown must be strictly home-made and the work of the person entering them and all jellies, preserves or canned fruits and pickles must be labeled true to name.

Sweet peas and baby breath centered the table and the engagement announcement was attached to attractive corsages of sweet peas in pastel tints, presented the guests.

Theatres

AT THE DELFT

Action, thrills, a fine love story, high comedy and splendid photography combined to make of "Forlorn River," the Zane Grey outdoor romance which opened at the Delft Theatre yesterday, a thoroughly satisfying and excellent evening's entertainment calculated to please the entire family.

With Lary Crabbe, June Martel, Syd Saylor, Harvey Stephens and Chester Conklin in its capable cast, "Forlorn River" is remarkable for the splendid camera work achieved in photographing the thousands of wild range horses who play an important part in the story. These horses, all "out-laws" are notoriously man and camera shy and few camera crews have been able to get near enough and long enough to take pictures of them.

* * *

Dynamic in its dramatic force and thrilling in a spectacular way, "The Devil Is Driving" opened at the Delft Theatre yesterday with Richard Dix as the star.

Dix, as usual, gives one of the finest performances of his career as the young lawyer who perjures testimony in defense of a wealthy young wastrel charged with manslaugher. He wins acquittal for the drunken driver but eventually has cause to regret it. This situation develops when Dix is elected district attorney and finds himself faced with the job of prosecuting the very same boy for killing a girl in another motor accident.

THE MICHIGAN

Flavored with much of the "new West" atmosphere of the Texas frontier today, RKO Radio's "Border Cafe," which opened yesterday at the Michigan theatre, proves to be an exciting romance, engagingly played by an excellent cast and offering grand entertainment.

Harry Carey, one of Hollywood's most colorful actors, and John Beal, one of the scree's most promising young dramatic stars, share stellar honors and turn in splendid performances.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippman

In the Hands of a Receiver

In the past few days there have been two straws in the wind which presage even more serious trouble for the New Deal than it has as yet encountered. Last week Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, attacked the National Labor Relations Board as a kangaroo court biased in favor of the C. I. O., and said it would be better to abolish the board than to let it make "economic hash of our national welfare." And on Monday Representative Rankin, of Mississippi, denounced the board as "conspiring with communistic influences to destroy Southern industries."

What makes these attacks so significant is, of course, the fact that Senator Nye and Representative Rankin belong to the left wing of what used to be called the farm bloc. Both of them are the avowed and persistant enemies of Eastern bankers and of the public utilities; both are in the traditional American sense advanced progressives; that is to say, opponents of concentrated wealth, big business and the conservative direction of money and credit. Yet here they are, sharply challenging the New Deal on one of its cruscial policies; on its attempt to use the Federal power to create a labor movement based on industrial unionism in alliance with the New Deal Democracy.

* * *

Any objective student of American politics could have told Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Wagner, "The Nation" and "The New Republic," Mr. Heywood Broun and other amiable philanderers with the notion of a farmer-labor party, that just this was bound to happen. The amateur progressives who have been riding high, wide and handsome for the last two or three years have been determined to believe that the logical objective of their efforts was a political party combining class-conscious farmers with class-conscious industrial workers. It is sheer delusion. But being possessed by this delusion they have been unable to think straight, and have proceeded to make one gigantic blunder after another.

The plain fact of the matter is that when farmers go into politics they naturally seek to raise the cost of living and to make raw materials more expensive; and when labor goes into politics it naturally does things which make more costly the things which the farmer buys. The idea that the same government can at one and the same time raise farm prices artificially and raise wages artificially would never be entertained by any competent student of politics.

For it is a truth, demonstrated again and again in our town experience, verifiable from the experience of every other country, including Russia, easily confirmed by any one who has lived both in industrial cities and in rural areas, that the divergence of interest and of moral outlook is very great between the city and the country. To think of founding a political party on their common interests is naive: for the real problem is to discover how statesmanship is to adjust and conciliate their conflicts of interest.

But because the dominant New Dealers are under the hallucination that they are creating a farmer-labor party, they have renounced the effort, difficult enough in all conscience, to play the part of the firm, friendly but impartial judge of conflicting interests. It has been a tragic blunder. It may discredit not only them but the cause of progressivism that they lead so earnestly but so unwisely. These attacks from Messrs. Nye and Rankin are certain signs that in becoming the partisans of the C. I. O. the New Dealers have not only not advanced a farmer-labor party, but have, in fact, driven a wedge between the agrarian progressives and the industrial radicals.

Nor have they proved to be good friends of organized labor and of the industrial workers. On the contrary, they have led them blithely and irresponsibly down a path to what may well prove to be a major catastrophe for American labor unionism. Whether they meant to or not, and I think they meant to, they have exacerbated the conflict between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. Then, because they encouraged the C. I. O. without having the honest courage to restrain it in time, because they have ridden with spurs and no bridle, they played a decisive part in the undoing of John L. Lewis and the C. I. O. Because they let it be believed that the Federal government was in alliance with the C. I. O., Mr. Lewis's inexperienced lieutenants called strikes before they had organized their men, made demands they had no power to enforce, and finally walked head on into the trap where Mr. Girdler was waiting for them.

For this folly the labor policy of the New Deal has been denounced by the C. I. O. as a betrayal. Thus the resplendent messiahs who buzz around the White House have managed to alienate the farm bloc, the A. F. of L., the C. I. O., the great bulk of the employers, and virually the whole middle class.

* * *

It was indeed high time when Mr. Garner took charge and became what is in effect the political receiver of an administration that has all but wrecked itself by its own wholly unnecessary blundering. By all ordinary standards the Roosevelt Administration ought to be more popular than ever; it is administering the government on a rising tide of prosperity. But it is in serious trouble, and the reason it is in serious trouble is that Mr. Roosevelt has been persuaded that he is the leader of a peaceable social revolution and, therefore, the partisan of certain interests as against other interests. This idea has caused him to cease to act the true role of an American President, which is to be the adjuster and conciliator of opposing interests and the vigilant guardian of liberty under the law.

That is what is dissolving his power. The sensational decline in his prestige and his popularity can, I feel certain, be ascribed directly to the growing realization among the people, that Mr. Roosevelt, in his second term, did not choose to conceive the Presidency as they expect him to conceive it.

CHAPTER XIV

"I bet on the winner, darling," cried Madison. "Two thousand dollars I bet—Duke was good enough to let me bet one after the race started and then when Stardust was ahead at the half, let me double it. Did you ever hear of anything so decent as that?"

Carol did not speak. She did not move. Only her eyes turned to Duke. If looks could kill, Duke thought, that would be his last moment. He knew what was racing through her mind, making her eyes narrow in anger. But Madison was so thrilled by the race, by his winning, that he did not notice how strangely she was behaving.

"It was three to one on Stardust," Madison went on happily. "And it brings our wedding day that much closer."

Then she found her voice.

"What-do-you-mean?" she spaced her words.

Madison was beginning to be aware that there was something he did not understand. His voice became less buoyant, more tender.

"Darling," he said, "why didn't you tell me about Brookdale and that you were—"

"By whose authority, Mr. Bradley," cut in Carol, "do you tell my affairs?"

"I thought," began Duke, but before he could say more, Madison spoke.

"I don't know why he shouldn't have told me, Carol. But it just happens he didn't."

Duke who had been counting a big roll of bills handed them to Madison. He held them out to Carol.

"I can't take this money," she said.

"But Carol, darling, why not?"

"I've got to do this by myself," she said. "If I'd wanted any help, I'd have mentioned it before this. And I don't want you betting and giving the money to me."

Her words and the way she said them made Madison more anxious than he had been before about her nerves. This couldn't go on. She would break, if things were not made right soon.

"Carol," he said gently, "all I want to do is to make you happy—us happy. We shouldn't have postponed our marriage in the first place. But you wanted to, so I consented. Now that I understand why you did it, I'm prouder than I can say of your pride and pluck. But it's quixotic to go on like this. Duke—you tell her."

Duke shook his head.

"Sorry, Madison," he said, "but this is something between Carol and you. It's the two of you who must decide."

"Oh, Hartley," she said, "why can't you understand? Maybe I am quixotic as you say, but I simply have to do this. I must make that $76,000 all by myself. I'll be doing it soon if I'm alone. But when you are with me, I'm thinking of you all the time. I can't keep my mind on my handicapping. I want to be with you, a good companion. Please, Hartley, won't you understand? Won't you let me have my way in this? It means everything to me."

Her words and her voice drove away his worry and eased the hurt in his heart. The doctor was right, after all. What she was doing might not be sensible—but who expected a girl in love to be that?

"I understand perfectly, dear," he said. "I should be attending to my business. I've had a glorious day, seeing you and winning on the race, but it is over. And soon—"

"Thank you, Hartley," she said. "And now I think I'll go and lie down. Dr. Beard said he was going to send up some one to give me a massage. Will I see you again?"

"If we are to be separated, I think not," he said. "I'll tell you goodbye now."

Heput his arm around her and walked with her to the door. He kissed her and he was so happy he did not notice that she did not return it, that she drew herself away rather hastily from his embrace. Just before she closed the door to her room, she called out to Duke, who had walked to the window and was looking out.

"I'll have a selection for Thursday, Mr. Bradley," she said. There was triumph in her voice and on her face.

"Thank you, lady fair," he said. But there was no smile on his face.

When the two men were alone, Madison went over to Duke and held out his hand.

"Well, Duke, old boy, I hate to leave you too. Hope we see each other again soon. Then I'll give you a chance to win this money back. But now it's back to New York for me."

"New York? I thought you were going to California."

"Yes, but with United Copper—"

"Your secretary seems an able chap. Of course it's none of my affair, but if you go West, there is Santa Anita. Going to suggest you'd better take a look at it."

Madison thought for a moment. Then he clapped Duke on the back.

"Hardly sooner said than done," he cried. "Of course I'm not needed in New York. The office can fuction without me. But those oil commissions are another matter. I'll go down, talk to Boswell, send some wires and order the plane. You'll go along with me, won't you? Expect you at the hangar as soon as you can make it."

He was half way out the door before he had finished and Duke had run to the phone, and asked the operator to connect him with his room. He was so jubilant that he fairly yelled when Tip answered.

"Don't unpack my things. Take the bags down, as are. I'm off to California with Madison."

"Oh no, you're not," came a voice he did not recognize.

He wheeled around.

In the doorway stood Carol.

He knew it was no time for words. In one leap he was across the room and out into the hall.

"You come back," shrieked Carol.

He was already turning the corner far down the corridor.

"Come back," she shrieked again.

He was out of sight. She tried to call again but she could not. There was only one thing to do. Picking up the train of her negligee and throwing it over her arm, she ran after him. When she reached the top of the long stairway leading to the lobby, he was at the bottom. She ran down quickly.

She saw Duke go into the next room. She followed. It was filled with people sitting at little tables drinking cocktails. She was not conscious of them any more than she was of her flimsy garments.

"Come back here, you!" she shrieked in so loud a tone that it could be heard above the tinkle of the ice in the glasses, above the music of the orchestra. She only half knew that the music missed several bars, that everyone in the room had turned and was staring at her. The one thing she fully knew was that Duke had disappeared. Then she felt some one take her arm in a firm grasp.

"Take the other," said Dr. Beard to the masseuse who had rushed up to her.

"Let me go," cried Carol struggling with them. She managed to free one arm. She swung it around and hit the masseuse squarely in the eye.

"Miss Clayton," came a sharp cry.

Automatically she looked in the direction of the sound—right into a camera leveled at her. There was a sound like an explosion, a sputtering of light in her face, as the flashlight went off. The man who had called to her was running from the room. What a picture he had for the sensational papers!

Carol's nerves seem to be completely out of control. And now she has let herself in for a scandal. Will it affect her marriage to Hartley? Will she follow him and Duke to California? Don't miss tomorrow's swift-moving installment.

WORKING ON LAKE

Iron Mountain—Pumping of water into Crystal lake, or at least the mud flat that used to be Crystal Lake, was started yesterday afternoon by the city water department, Alton Forell, city engineer, stated today.

A half million gallons, the full capacity of the line, will be emptied into the lake daily, being pumped from the Hamilton shaft of the former Chapin mine. Pumping is maintained steadily at the shaft to prevent the water level from rising in the Chapin pit and endangering the right-of-way of the Milwaukee and North Western railways. The operation is carried on through an arrangement between the railways and city and about 2,500,000 gallons are withdrawn daily and diverted into Lake Antoine.

STORIES IN STAMPS

WHERE ICE AGE STILL EXISTS

DOWN at the bottom of the world, where the temperature sinks regularly to 110 degrees below freezing, the second Byrd Antarctic Expedition of 1933-35 found a modern ice age at its crest; an ice age such as existed at the top of the world probably 30,000 years ago.

By exploding dynamite and using an echo-sounding device the expedition was able, for the first time in history, to determine thickness of the ice covering. Commander Richard E. Byrd estimated that the ice sheet at the South Pole varies from about two miles in thickness to a few feet. "Therefore, we think," said Admiral Byrd in his official report on his exploration, "that hundreds of thousands of years ago the ice that covered many states of this country probably was as much as two miles thick."

The Byrd expedition discovered and claimed for the United States a land area as large as the combined Atlantic Seaboard states from Maine to Georgia.

The stamp below was issued in 1933 in connection with the second Byrd Antarctic expedition. In addition to the postage charge of 3 cents, letters sent to the base camp, Little America, for cancellation, were charged an additional 50 cents.

THEATRES

Packed with thrills, laughter, glamour and surprises, "The Gentleman From Louisiana," shows today at the Rialto Theatre.

Against a romantic background of New Orleans, New Orleans, New York, Epsom Downs and Saratoga of a generation ago, the Jerry Chodorov-Bert Granet story has been faithfully transferred to the screen by Irving Pichel, director-actor-writer.

In the role of a Southern charmer, Charlotte Henry of "Alice in Wonderland" fame, blossoms forth with all the convincingness of a Dixie-bred beauty. There will be no more childish roles for her after this. She appears opposite Eddie Quillan, who drops his comedy mantle for a handsome love-stricken swain.

SECOND FEATURE

The dean's office of a large university is the scene of the crime in "Murder Goes to College," a sprightly mystery story with Lynne Overman and Roscoe Karns, which is the second feature.

The victim is a professor who found a way to control the policy racket by mathematics. Among the suspects are Larry Crabbe, head of the policy mob; Astrid Allwyn, the professor's wife, in love with Crabbe; Marsha Hunt, his sister; Anthony Nace, her fiance, and several professors who were in the dead mans debt.

Overman as a private detective finds the murderer in this group with the aid of Karns, a newspaper man.

By FREDERICK GARDNER
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, July 30 (AP)—Buying in selected steels inspired quiet rallies in other portions of today's stock market but the going was difficult and light profit selling cut down many gains of fractions to more than 2 points in the final hour.

Early recovery power appeared in the wake of yesterday's late announcement of Bethlehem Steel disclosing a hoisted dividend and the best net for the second quarter in 7 years.

Although there was no expansion in dealings, a few utilities, oils, farm implements, coppers and rails joined the move to a greater or less extent.

While earnings reports on the whole were encouraging, some company statements revealed profit setbacks sufficient to chill speculative interest in the stocks concerned. The result was a sort of see-saw trend in the latter part of the session.

Generally comforting business news, including improved retail sales, was partially offset, brokers thought, by the battle over the wage-hour legislation in congress and further tenseness regarding the war situation in the Far East.

The day's turnover was the second smallest for a full session in a month, transfers totalling 615,250 shares against 610,765 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks edged up .2 of a point to 68.9.

On the side of utilities was the hope Washington law-makers will go home without passing the new power bills. Although carrier presidents saw brighter traffic prospects, aided by bumper crops, the wage controversy helped to keep most rail issues in lower territory. The crop outlook again buoyed farm machinery shares.

Bonds were ragged, as were commodities. Corn at Chicago fell 1 to 3¾ cents a bushel and wheat was up ½ to 1¼. Cotton was off 5 cents to up 20 cents a bale. Foreign currencies were narrow.

Gains And Losses Are Even On Curb

New York, July 30 (AP)—The curb market trudged along a narrow path today with a few utilities, oils and industrials participating in fractional gains.

Interest lagged and no one group came to the front to establish definite leadership as gains and losses were fairly evenly distributed.

Electric Bond & Share rose ¾ to 20 5-8 while American Gas & Electric gave up ¼ to 36. Northern States Power "A" ended at 25¼, up ¾, and United Gas gained 7-8 to 11.

Oils were generally uneven. Creole Petroleum sagged 1-8 to 36 5-8 while Gulf and Leonard held an even course. Sunray eased a trifle and Pantepec pointed fractionally higher.

United Wall Paper, Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. and Pittsburgh Plate Glass declined slightly while New Jersey Zinc and Trans-Lux were unchanged.

Volume totalled 183,000 shares compared with Thursday's transfers of 144,000 shares.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, July 30—Around 8 cents a bushel smash of corn values in 48 hours culminated late today with a two-cent rally from season new low-price records.

Increasingly bright prospects for a 3,000,000,000 bushel corn crop this season were in general given as the cause for lively selling that accompanied the new break of prices. Predictions were that widespread beneficial rains would be received by the corn belt over the week-end.

Brisk profit-taking, however, on the part of recent sellers was largely responsible for the late rally of the corn market. The fact that prices of corn available for immediate delivery refused outright to follow new downturns of quotations on deferred deliveries tended likewise to bring about rallies, especially as futures showed a decline of nearly 25 cents in two weeks.

At the close, corn futures were 1 cent to 2 3-4 cents under yesterday's finish, September 90 7-8 to 91 1-8, December 68 3-4 to 69, May 70½, wheat ½ to 1¼ cent advanced, September 1.18 1-8 to 1.18¼, December 1.19½ to 1.19 5-8, May 1.24 to 1.24 3-4, oats ¼ off to 1-8 up, September 29 7-8, and rye unchanged to 3-8 lower, September 81 5-8 to 81 3-4. Provisions results varied from 22 cents setback to 5 cents bulge.

Downward swings of the corn market today were led by September contracts, which fell at one stage to 89 3-4 cents against 93 5-8, the closing figures of yesterday. December corn made the best recovery, climbing from a low of 67 cents today to 69 cents at the last. Much notice was taken if reports that farmers are widely using low-grade wheat to feed as a slbstitute for corn.

All future deliveries of oats as well as of corn broke season low-price records today. Oats, nevertheless, rallied later, helped by indications of Canadian export sales of oats. Northwest offerings of rye were somewhat freer.

New York, July 30 (AP)—A steady and slightly advancing tendency in government obligations brightened an inactive bond market today. Federals moved up as much as 7-32 while losses did not exceed 1-32.

With new bond offerings during the past week at a low ebb—approximately $19,000,000, of which the greater part was municipals—some observers hold the view that treasuries are proving the natural outlet for institutional investment.

The domestic corporate sector was marked by a down drift in carrier liens shared to some extent by industrial issues. The Associated Press averages for 20 rails showed a decline of .4 of a point to 91.7.

Some quarters of the financial community believe that institutional buyers have been disposing of lower grade and defaulted rail issues recently which fact may have helped to depress the carriers. Some pessimism over pending wage increase negotiations and a crop of not so bright six months earnings reports have also rode herd on the rails.

Recent serenity of foreign dollar loans was disturbed by gyrations in French issues. Following announcement by the French government of proposed budetary economies, and what is interpreted by some as "a swing to the right," French 7½s stamped jumped 4 3-8 to 109 7-8.

A trifle higher were Illinois Central 4¾s at 64, American & Foreign Power 5s at 80½ and International Hydro Electric 6s at 84 3-8.

Total transactions for all bonds was $5,861,900, face value, compared with $6,169,500 on Thursday.

Cubs Whip Giants, 5-3; Tigers Lose In 10 Innings

ENEMY ERRORS PROVE HELPFUL

Chicagoans Get Bingles When They Need 'Em on Ladies Day

Chicago, July 30 (AP)—On the strength of their own timely hitting and four enemy errors, the Cubs whipped the New York Giants 5 to 3 in the series opener today to stretch their National league lead to four full games before a ladies' day crowd of 37,341.

A two-run rally in the third, after each team had scored three times in the second, put the game on ice for the Cubs and assured them of winding up the three-game series with the pace-setting position still in their possession.

After the third inning outburst, both pitchers, Bill Lee, the Cubs' No. 1 elbower, and Harry Gumbert, Chicago "jinx" of a week ago, hurled airtight ball, with only one man reaching third through the last six frames.

College Student Enters Birling Tourney at Fair

The birling sport, which in the past has been monopolized by the old-time lumberjacks, is being invaded by the college athlete.

Joe Connor, Cloquet, Minn., University of Minnesota student, who is working this summer with the U. S. Forest Service at Mountain, Wis., will compete in the world's championship log rolling tournament to be held at the Upper Peninsula State Fair in Escanaba August 13 to 15. Connor, 26, won fourth place in the world's championship tournament at Cloquet in 1930.

About thirty of the best birlers in the United States will be entered in the three-day tournament at Escanaba. Other contestants will be: Wilbur Marx, Eau Claire, Wis., world's champion birler since 1927; Billy Girard, Gladstone, Mich., 1926 champion; Frank Marchand, Jimmie Johnson, Cloquet, Minn., Ray Quick, Eau Claire; Joe Stauber and Clarence Knutson, Marinette, Wis., and other topnotchers.

The championship match Sunday afternoon, August 15, will be broadcast over the red network of the National Broadcasting company.

TITLE HOLDER KNOCKED COLD

Howdy Mason Fighting at Marquette Proves To Be Hayward Story

Marquette, Mich., July 30 (AP)—Did the state middleweight title change hands here tonight?

Hayward Story, Detroit negro, knocked out Frankie Misko, Saginaw holder of the belt, in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-rounder in the Palestra arena, but until the fight was over the crowd thought Story was "Howdy" Mason, who was billed as Misko's opponent.

Paul Miller, promoter of the card, said he thought Story was Mason, so Story was introduced in the ring as Mason and carried the alias until after he kayoed the champ.

Gene La Rue, Detroit manager of Story, says he will claim the belt for his man. He says Mason was unable to leave Detroit at the last minute and that he (La Rue) contacted the state boxing commission and was given permission to substitute Story. He said he didn't inform Marquette promoters of the show about the substitution because he thought it would "hurt their gate".

Senators Bombard Two Pitchers And Score 13-2 Victory

Washington, July 30 (AP)—The Washington Senators shelled Earl Whitehill and Lloyd Brown for 18 hits today to defeat Cleveland 13 to 2.

Jimmy Deshong held the Indians to six hits to ring up his eleventh pitching victory of the year.

A foul off Pytlak's bat in the second inning split Catcher Rick Ferrell's thumb. He likely will be out of the lineup for several days.

Score by innings:

Cleveland 010 000 100— 2 6 2
Senators 023 600 02x—13 18 0

Whitehill, L. Brown and Pytlak, Becker; Deshong and R. Ferrell, Millies.

Guy Bush bested By Brandt, 1 to 0, In Twirling Duel

Pittsburgh, July 30. (AP)—Big Dutch Brandt, pitching a brilliant two-hit shutout for the Pirates, bested old Guy Bush and the Boston Bees 1 to 0 today in one of the year's tightest mound duels.

His mates put the usual storybook finish to the game by producing a run for him with two out in the ninth inning to break up the proceedings. 1 Todd's double, a walk, Pep Young's infield hit and Red Lucas' pinch fly turned the trick to end the game.

Score by innings:

Boston ..... 000 000 000—0 2 0
Pittsburgh .. 000 000 001—1 7 0

Looking Them Over

WITH

Tim Cohane

THE FORDHAM PROSPECTS

We've tried not to bore the good citizenry of Hiawathaland with too much mention of Fordham these last seven days and we've purposely postponed an appraisal of Fordham's 1937 football prospects until this, the last day of our stay.

From the fine 1936 eleven that defeated Franklin and Marshall, Waynesburg, Southern Methodist, St. Mary's and Purdue; tied Pittsburgh and Georgia; and lost to N. Y. C., 7-6, in the season's finale, Jim Crowley lost six regulars by graduation. They are Leo Paquin, left end, and Nat Pierce and Vincent Lombardi, the guards, all three of whom were important members of "The Seven Blocks of Granite," the Fordham line which permitted only one touchdown, either on the ground or through the air, during the entire difficult schedule.

In the backfield, Andy Palau, one of the finest quarterbacks in the country last fall; Joe Dulkie, a terror when blocking and backing up a line on defense; and Frank Mautte, a wraithlike open field ace, will no longer be on hand. Add to these six regulars, who received their sheepskins in June, eleven other substitutes, who were important members of the squad, and it is readily seen that immy Crowley has a task or rebuilding half his line and three-quarters of his backfield before the Rams do battle with Franklin and Marshall, Waynesburg, Pittsburgh, Texas Christian, North Carolina, Purdue, St. Mary's and N. Y. U.

There will be a terrific fight for not only three but four backfield jobs. Even Al Gurske, sole remaining member of the 1936 backfield, who ran eighty yards to a touchdown against Purdue, will have a job holding his post. Three sophomore backs, Charlie Jamin, Pete Holovak and Steve Kazlo, will make Gurske step. They are better natural runners than Al but Kurske has the experience on pass defense, which is so important in big college games, especially when there is a lad like Cecil Isbell of Purdue, tossing them for the opponents.

George McKnight, a senior, and Angelo Fortunato, an extremely promising sophomore, will battle it out for quarterback, while Johnny Lock, who beat Southern Methodist with a 78-yard run, and Mike Hearn, a fleet-footed southpaw, will strive to win the first string fullback job. At right halfback, Joe Woitkoski, a veteran of two seasons and the best kicker on the squad, will attempt to ward off the bid of Joe Granski, a junior. Jimmy is up against a sharp problem here. A backfield of Fortunato, Holovak, Hearn and Granski would represent speed and running ability but would be totally devoid of experience. On the other hand, McKnight, Gurske, Woitkoski, and Lock have the experience under fire and can defend against the pass, but haven't much running ability.

In the line, Alex Wojciechowicz, All-American center, will be on hand once again. At the tackles Ed Franco and Al Babartsky, a sweet duet, will return for their last year of collegiate competition. Captain Johnny Druze, right end, who has wrecked the Pittsburgh running attack for the last two years, will team up with Henry Jacunski on the wings. A terrific scramble for the two open guard berths will feature the fall practice. There are six men, all of whom can play a strong game. But guard is the only spot where Fordham has any reserve strength. An injury to "Wojie," Franco, Babartsky, Druze or Jacunski, and the Ram will be up against it.

Summing up, we'd say that Fordham will have about the same strength in the line as she had last year, unless an injury plague descends upon Rose Hill. In the backfield there will not be the blocking, nor the ability on pass defense, nor the experience that Joe Dulkie, Andy Palau and Frank Mautte afforded. A more versified running attack may eventuate since these inexperienced sophomores are better ball carriers than we have had lately at Fordham. At least, we think they are, yet we haven't seen them under fire.

If Fordham had a schedule like most eastern schools, the Rams would seldom be beaten. As it is, only two games have been lost since 1934, one last year and one the year before, and this despite the terrific intersectional caliber of the opposition. We drew 265,000 people to eight games last season and only Princeton and Navy outdrew us in the east. So tough schedules bring the folks out, especially if a team can win most of the games played, as Fordham has been doing.

Once again, that 1937 schedule: October 2, Franklin and Marshall; October 9, Waynesburg; October 16, Pittsburgh; October 23, Texas Christian; October 30, North Carolina; November 6, Purdue; November 13, St. Mary's; and November 20, N. Y. U. All the games, except North Carolina, will be played in New York. We won't win' em all, we wont' lose 'em all, and you can bet that anyone who beats us will know they've been in a battle. Take off a week, this fall, and come down and see us. You won't be disappointed.

LATTORE PAYS VISIT TO U. P.

Dearborn Shoe Pitcher Shows Boys How to Toss Ringers

Leo G. Lattore, Dearborn, president of Wolverine State Horseshoe Pitching Association, gave a fine exhibition of shoe tossing at the White Horse courts on Tuesday.

Mr. Lattore took his vacation in the Upper Peninsula in an effort to promote interest in the sport. He showed the Escanaba pitchers some of the fine points of game, such as how to hold a shoe, how to stand and swing.

He is also member of the equipment committee of the National Horseshoe association.

Escanaba barnyard golfers will hold another meet at Pioneer Trail Park on Sunday.

Local Beers Team Wins at Marinette

The Menominee Beers ball team of this city won from the Marinette Lauerman's under floodlights at the Marinette diamond on Thursday evening by a score of 9 to 5 in 11 innings. Kositzke, pitching for the Escanaba team, fanned 15 Lauerman batters and then teamed up with Anderson to knock out a pair of homers that decided the tilt.

Batteries were: Beers, Kositzke and Hamm; Lauerman's LeBoef and Heckel.

The Beers will play the Norway Hilltoppers on the No. 2 diamond here on Sunday evening. The game is to begin at seven o'clock.

COCHRANE BACK IN HIS UNIFORM

Lead on Third Place Only Two Games Over Boston

Boston, July 30 (AP)—With Manager Mickey Cochrane in uniform for the first time since his skull was fractured by a pitched ball May 25, the Detroit Tigers lost a 6-5 ten-inning game to the Red Sox today, narrowing their third place lead to only two games over Boston. It was the Sox's third straight victory and gave them the series opener.

Relief pitcher Jack Wilson's double to right center on the first pitch off George Coffman with two out, scored Roger Cramer with the winning run, after the latter had singled and advanced to second on an infield out.

Lefty Grove, perennial Detroit nemesis, lasted only seven innings, being replaced by Rube Walberg. Wilson, in turn, relieved Walberg and hurled no-hit ball the last two innings, receiving credit for his tenth victory against five defeats. Wilson also pitched hitless relief ball against the Browns yesterday.

Gehringer came in for the Tigers' first point in the third. He was on with a bunt to third. Greenberg followed him on a walk, and the two pulled a double steal as Walker struck out. Owen hit a grounder that hit Grove on the foot and bounded away for a single, and Gehringer came in.

Greenberg Doubles

In the next inning Cronin started with a single to right. The bases were filled after Foxx hit a grounder that Gelbert fumbled, and McNair walked. Cramer forced Cronin, Bridges to Hayworth, and Desautels' double brought Foxx and McNair in.

The Tigers took the lead again in the fifth with three runs. Gelbert was safe at first on Higgins' high throw. Gehringer put a double, his third hit of the day, in right center, Gelbert going to third. Hank Greenberg brought both of them in with a double. Walker bunted a single past Grove, and Owen singled, scoring Greenberg.

In the seventh the Red Sox garnered one run. Desautels, on with a single and push around by a single by Dallesandro, scored on a single by Chapman. A double play, Owen to Gehringer to Greenberg closed the inning.

Even In Eighth

With Walberg pitching for Boston, Detroit got one more in the eighth. Bridges singled, and was forced by Fox, Higgins to Cronin. Fox stole second, and Gehringer got his fourth hit, a single. Cronin knocked the ball down and kept Foxx from scoring. Greenberg singled, scoring Fox.

Boston retaliated with two runs in their half of the eighth to even the score. Both Higgins and McNair walked, and Higgins was scored on Cronin's single. A squeeze play settled the tie for the Red Sox. Desautels bunted a sacrifice to Greenberg, scoring McNair.

The tie was broken in the tenth, when Wilson doubled and sent Cramer in.

Saturday Evening Post Sports Writer Planning To Cover Birling Meet

J. Roy Stockton, baseball writer for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and a frequent contributor of sports articles to the Saturday Evening Post, may come to Escanaba to cover the World's Championship Log Rolling Tournament, which will be held August 13 to 15.

Word has been received from John W. Dienhart, managing editor of the Chicago Herald & Examiner, that a staff writer will be sent up to Escanaba to represent that newspaper. The Herald & Examiner will run a big spread, story and pictures in its Sunday, August 1, issue.

Mr. Stockton was in the army at Fort Riley, Kansas, with J. J. Boucher of Escanaba, during the World war.

He writes as follows to the birling tournament management:

"Your letter of the ninth was forwarded to me and caught up with me when I returned from a recent trip with the poor Cardinals. I want to thank you for your kind invitation and suggestion, and I am forwarding your summary to Mr. Stout of the Saturday Evening Post, with a hope that he might want me to take a shot at a birling story.

"The big difficulty right now is that I'm doing a daily stint for the Post-Dispatch and unless I could interest them, might have difficulty getting away. However, the thought occurred that they might want a piece for their Sunday magazine and I might kill a couple or several dozen smelt with one railroad ticket.

"It sounds like it would be a most interesting trip. I don't get much chance to fish, as my busiest time is during the season, but I love it. I usually have to take my outing after the football season and have to be satisfied with quail, duck, geese and every few years a wild turkey.

"When I was in the army there was a young medical student from Escanaba in the same causual detachment at Fort Riley, Kan. His name was Joe Boucher, or Buched. He was a sergeant and I was a private, but he was a good egg, except that he had special passes to wear leather putts.

"It certainly would be a break for me if I could accept your kind invitation and I am hoping. Truly, J. Roy Stockton."

100 MILE RACE TO START TODAY

Fourteen Sailing Craft Entered in Event at Menominee

Menominee, Mich., July 30—Fourteen sailing craft will leave the Menominee yacht basin sometime between 2 and 4 p. m. Saturday for the first 100-mile sailing race sponsored by the M. & M. Yacht club. The exact starting time will depend on weather conditions and the boats will be started in two classes. The smaller and slower cruisers will leave the harbor a half-hour ahead of the larger and faster boats.

All entries have been handicapped according to a formula adopted and used in the long distance sailing races run in the east which are open to all types of boats. The winner will be declared on corrected time rather than elapsed time. Finish of the race is scheduled Sunday.

Course Outlined

The course outlined by the committee runs from the starting point in the Menominee basin to the gas and bell buoy at the northwest shoal of Chambers Island, then south to government light No. 24 at Sturgeon Bay, west around Green Island, through the Strawberry Island channel, then south and east around Horseshoe Island, around the spar buoy on the north end of Chambers Island and back into the Menominee harbor. The course covers approximately 100 land miles.

The Sturgeon Bay coast guard will patrol the course during the entire race and the various turning points on the course will be checked by Alfred A. Henes' yacht Dorothy, Frank Lauerman Jr.'s Framona, Donald DeWitt's Valiant II of Oconto, Gordan Barker's Mohawk IV of Green Bay and Dr. H. L. Jorgensen's Nautilus. The Julia Lynn, owned by E. A. Meyer, and the Mary S. owned by E. P. Smith, will be used as contact boats between the craft checking the course.

Clouting Yankees Belt Browns, 8 - 2

New York, July 30 (AP)—For the first time in a week, the Yankees received effective pitching today and they combined it with their customary clouting to trample the St. Louis Browns 8 to 2 in the current series opener.

Young Kemp Wicker, making his second start since he was brought up from the Yanks' International league farm at Newark, stopped the slugging Brownies with seven hits, and blanked them until the sixth as he chalked up his second straight win.

His chief assistants in the victory were Lou Gehrig, who clouted his 20th homer with a mate aboard in the first inning; Frank Crosetti, who collected four hits for the day, including one double, and Big Bill Dickey, who drove in two runs with a pair of singles.

Floodlight Contest Won by Phils, 1 to 0

Cincinnati, July 30 (AP)—Behind five-hit pitching of Wayne Lamaster, the Philadelphia Phillies won a floodlight contest from the Cincinnati Reds tonight, 1 to 0 and dropped them into seventh place. They had been tied with Brooklyn for sixth.

The Phils tallied the single marker in the first inning on a walk to right fielder Browne and a hit by Chuck Klein.

Lamaster allowed the Reds two hits in the first frame then retired the next thirteen batsmen in order, seven of them by strike outs. He allowed only one Red to reach third base.

THE BIG SIX

(By The Associated Press)

Cecil Travis, Washington's slugging shortstop, replaced Lou Gehrig in first place in the American League batting race, ousting the Yankee clouter from the top yesterday for the first time in weeks. Travis hit four-for-five to boost his average nine points to .376, while Gehrig, although getting two-for-four, was able only to hold second place with .373. Over in the National League, the official statisticians imposed a 250-at-bat minimum for the race, which dropped Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs out of the leading trio and enabled his teammate, Billy Herman, to climb into third place.

Standings of the leaders (first three in each league):

'LIGHT HORSE' HARRY IN LEAD

Chicagoan Four Strokes Under Par in St. Paul Open Golf Tourney

BY WILLIAM WEEKES

St. Paul, July 30 (AP)—"Light Horse' Harry Cooper made his favorite golfing terrain, the Keller course, do a few tricks today to fashion a par-busting 33-35—68, and a one-stroke lead over a neighborhood boy, Pat Sawyer, of Minneapolis, in the opening round of St. Paul's eighth annual $5,000 open tournament.

The wiry little Chicagoan's opening effort in pursuit of the $1,500 capital prize, a four-stroke edge over par, was achieved to the surprise of no one, for he has given the course numerous lacings in previous visits. He set a competitive record of 271 strokes in winning the 1935 renewal, and kicked par around enough to win first money in 1930 and 1936.

The prize trick of his round was a sparkling eagle three on the third hole where he sank a 55-foot chip shot. He dropped a three foot putt for a birdie on the first hole, drilled a 13 footer for another on the fifth, sank one of five feet for a third one on the 12th and finished by almost holing a short chip on the 18th for another eagle. He was one foot away on the final hole and sank the putt for his fourth birdie. He made the course behave on the rest of the holes with the exception of the ninth where a three-footer rimmed the cup, and on the 17th where he needed three putts from the edge.

Sawyer, bespectacled former University of Minnesota star who has operated as a professional for about two years, accounted for the only other under-70 card of the day. Two birdies, the fourth and the seventh, helped him shave a stroke from outgoing par 36, and birds on the 10th and 12th gave him the rest of his margin over the layout.

A gusty wind which harassed the field on the back nine helped hold the number of sub-par scores to 14, an unusually meagre showing for the tournament.

Tied for third place at 70, were Ed Brook, Bartow, Fla., professional, and Johnny Dawson, Chicago veteran, who topped the amateurs for the day. Abreast at 71 were eight professionals headed by National Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, and numbering E. J. Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., Johnny Revolta, former P. G. A. champion, and Johnny Bulla, both of Chicago; Jimmy Hines of Garden City, L. I., who matched Cooper's outgoing 33; Marion H. Smith of Crawfordsville, Ind., Lawson Little, former amateur boss, and Henry Ransom of Bryan, Tex.

Manager Of Blues Retained By Yanks

Kansas City, July 30 (AP)—The New York Yankees announced they will retain E. W. "Dutch" Zwilling "at least for this season" as manager of the Kansas City Blues after completing purchase of the American Association club today from John Kling, famed old-time Chicago Cub catcher.

Roy Hamey, who has been with the Yankees' Binghampton, N. Y., team, will serve as traveling secretary for the Blues.

"Big Wheels" To Be Shown at U. P. Fair

The "big wheels," which were used in the early lumbering days around Manistique to transport the big timber and which have been on display for several years at Parker's Resort, Indian Lake, will be used to furnish additional atmosphere at the world's championship log roling tournament at the state fairgrounds in Escanaba August 13 to 15.

Earl Parker, proprietor of Parker's Resort, has consented to loan the big wheels to the tournament management for the occasion. The wheels will be stationed adjoining the huge birling tank, in front of the fairgrounds grandstand.

A massive Paul Bunyan figure, 24 feet high, will be set up on a huge log just back of the bank, and will be surrounded by a miniature forest, which will be planted by CCC boys under the direction of the U. S. Forest Service.

Construction of the tank has been completed, and is being given an application of creosote. It is 30 feet square and four feet seven inches in depth. Three white pine birling logs, secured from the I. Stephenson company, are now being turned on the machine shop lathe at the Northwestern Veneer and Plywood Corporation's plant at Gladstone. The turning is being done by Archie Swanson, who has been doing similar work for William F. Girard, Gladstone, well known birler, for many years.

When the Bolsheviks came into power in Poland during the war, they built a scaffold and actually hanged a noted Arabian stallion because they associated the royal line of horse heritage with that of kings.

Miss Morrill Tells of Trip To Marine City

BY MORJORIE MORRILL

Marine City, Mich.—Well, we found Hiram Calkins for Matt Surrell. Matt had asked us to try and do so, saying: "Hiram was a handsome young man. He was the first bookkeeper in Newberry. He kept the books and was paymaster for the Vulcan Iron company, the first industry in the town of Newberry." So all along the way, from Newberry to Munising, to Marquette; across the peninsula to Escanaba, on towards the Green bay country and Menomine, and across the lake to Frankfort (on which trip, having asked for rough weather we got it to our sorrow!); down to Ludington, across to Midland and then on to Port Huron, we thought now and again: We must try and find Hiram Calkins, Matt Surrell's handsome young man, at Marine City.

Marine City, an old town located at the junction of River St. Clair and Belle river, happens to be the place where this reporter first saw the light of a May Day, in the same old house where her mother before was born, and where her grandmother had lived from the time she was seven until she was past seventy. A square frame house, framed in white pine, with hand-hewn timbers and the walls grouted with bricks between the scantlings, it is now 111 years old.

We drove there first, the family party, and paused for a moment to remember the lovely quiet days and nights spent there. We wondered if the old trumpet honeysuckle vine was the same root which flourished there in that far-off day. Then we drove to the cemetery to stand for a moment by the side of the graves of that gentle pair, and grandparents, and by the side of the stone of the sailor uncle whose bones had washed these long years in Lake Michigan waters near the Manitou Islands.

It was in the cemetery that we got word of Hiram Calkins. Two men, resting from their labors in the well-kept resting place of the peaceful, looked friendly, so one of our party spoke to them. One of them, the elder, was a brother of Engineer Densmore of St. Ignace. Of course, he knew Mister Calkins, told us where he lived and how to get there. We found him sitting on his porch with his elder brother Frank, also known by the oldsters of that old Newberry. Hiram is a surprising man. As slender and upright as ever, with hardly a grey hair in his head and plenty of brown curls at that—the same "handsome young man" that his old friend Matt had talked of with so much affection.

Hiram is now 73. His wife, a sister of Mrs. George Jones, a former Newberry resident, died only last February. Hiram was one of the first men to arrive at the point which later became Newberry. The surveyor for the furnace foundations was living in a tent, he says, and he spent the first night in a shanty with six or seven other newcomers. Next night there were six or seven new shacks for them to stay in. The telegraph operator for the new railroad station also lived in a tent. This was in the spring of the year—the snow was still on the ground. The first work Hiram did was to assist in running the lines for the furnace foundation. He asked, with a little look of fear in his eyes, for his old friends. Was Matt pretty well? We told him: hale and hearty and on the job every day. That was good. And Foster, J. C.? He was gone, leaving his family to carry on the old business. And Harry L. Harris? He was fine, too. They are getting old? We all do that. Yes . . . yes.

It is 37 years since Hiram Calkins left Newberry after working there for eleven years. He had spent a few years in Marquette and then had moved to Marine City where he had opened a store and managed it actively until only a few weeks before when he sold it.

We chatted for a while, then we said boodbye. The dohicky on the instrument board reported that we had journeyed 788 miles since leaving Newberry, not counting that long ride across the top of Lake Michigan. The trip was a success. We had found Hiram Calkins for Matt Surrell.

"Barefoot Charley," Lumberjack, Has Worn Shoes Only 3 Times In 25 Years

By KENDRICK KIMBALL

Watersmeet, Mich.—Save for three occasions, Charles Hasse, a lumberjack, hasn't worn shoes for 25 years.

His habit of going barefoot throughout the year—even when the snow is a yard deep and the temperature is 20 or 30 degrees below zero—has gained him the soubriquet of "Barefoot Charley."

Twice Haase borrowed a pair of brogans to wear at weddings. His third surrender to the amenities of the day was at a funeral, when the usher refused to admit him to the church, without footwear. "Charley" tried to get by with stockings, but the usher was adamant.

Otherwise Haase's shoeless record is perfect, winter and summer alike. During the 25-year period he has not suffered frost bite, chilblains or other pedal discomforts, nor has he come down with a cold.

Shoes For Sissies

Cinders, broken glass, sharp rocks and shingle nails have not daunted Haase, who lives at Land O'Lakes, south of Watersmeet. His only accident, a sprained toe resulted from a lusty but inaccurate kick at a foot ball.

Haase believes shoes are "unnatural" and "unhealthful." They cramp the feet, he says, retarding circulation and interfering with the normal "breathing" of the skin. "Only sissies wear them" he asserts.

Haase, now 46, began the practice at a lumber camp near Iron River. While trimming a slippery log, he slipped and fell into the underbrush. To improve his footing he mounted the log in his stocking feet, but that didn't help matters either. An hour of barefoot chopping convinced him that shoes were impractical, and that night he gave his to a teamster.

"I can walk farther and faster than any man in Michigan," Haase continued. "A few ounces of excess weight on the feet makes a big difference over a couple miles."

"Two embarrassing moments" came to Haase as the result of his practice. His exposed feet drew such a crowd in Iron River during a blizzard that a police officer threatened to arrest him for obstructing traffic, and last fall he narrowly escaped being shot by hunters.

"I was deer hunting myself," Hasse explained. "A party of city sportsmen followed my footprints all afternoon in a fresh snow, thinking I was a bear. I saw 'em drawn' a bead on me while I was sittin' on a stump and hollered in the nick of time."

Sally Electrifies Fans

How times have changed for Sally Rand! Of yore she'd keep cool by stripping down to her fans; today you see her, seated in front of an electric fan, a long, cold drink in her hand, warming up to an evening at a New York night club. But blow of blows, Grover Whalen announced there'd be no place at the New York World's Fair for Sally and her fan dance, except in the wax figure museum.
